EUROPE.

The Disorder in Paris Resumed—The Troops Carry New Barricades—Tranquillity Finally Restored—Stormy Scenes in Marseilles—The Ministerial Council.

PARIS, Feb. 9—3 A. M.—The disorders broke out again at Belleville and in the Rue du Faubourg du Temple at midnight. Several additional barricades have been erected in the narrow streets. The troops are still in the neighborhood of the scene, but up to this hour have not fired on the rioters. The Police are active, and there are rumors of killed and wounded on the Boulevart Montmartre, (running from the Rue Montmartre to the Rue Richelieu,) the Police having made several charges on the position of the rioters there. This point is fully a mile and a half distant from the scene of the disturbances yesterday. Many additional arrests have been made. GUSTAVE FLOURENS, the leader of the disturbances, is still at large, though the authorities are making every effort to arrest him.

12 M.—The morning journals have the following details of the disturbance which occurred last night: "There had been much excitement among the people during the day, which culminated about midnight in new outbreaks. These were not confined to one locality, nor were they on the scene of those suppressed yesterday at La Villette and Belleville, but nearer the centre of the city, and only a few squares from the Palais Royal. New and stronger barricades were thrown up and tumultuously defended. The Police attacked several of these, but were quickly driven off. The military forces were then brought into requisition, which, as on the day previously, carried all the barricades without firing on the crowd. There seems to be a hesitation on the part of both troops and rioters to resort to the use of firearms. Strong detachments of Police have been placed on all the boulevards, with orders to forcibly disperse all crowds. Hundreds of the rioters have been arrested. Several were wounded, mainly in conflicts with the Police, and it is reported some were killed. The Marseillaise did not appear to-day. All its editors are under arrest for aiding the rioters. One of the editors of the Rappel was also arrested for the same offence. The Ministers remained at the Headquarters of the Police all night. The city is now tranquil.

3 P. M.—The Police and the military authorities have the riot under control, and the city is tranquil.

9 P. M.—The city is now tranquil. A strong Police force is patrolling the streets. Many workshops were closed to-day. A crowd of several hundred persons gathered in Marseilles last night and hissed, and in other ways insulted the Police and gendarmes. They were summoned to disperse, but refused to do so. The Police then charged on them and made a large number of arrests. After an examination of the prisoners this morning only thirty were remanded to prison.

PARIS, Feb. 9, via LONDON.—All the editors of La Marseillaise have been arrested. VALES, the printer, refuses to put to press.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Ultramontanes are exceedingly bitter against Dr. DOLLINGER for his letter against the proclamation of the dogma of infallibility. They everywhere denounce him, and in some quarters he is described as Anti-christ.

The London Journals on the Speech and Address—Proceedings of the House of Commons—The Telegraph Interruption.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The newspapers this morning comment variously on the Queen's speech, and the debate thereon in Parliament yesterday. The Times thinks the weak point in the Ministry is the timid policy on the Irish question, though this is somewhat redeemed by the courage displayed in the matter of the Fenians and the promise to urge vigorous legislation.....The Daily News (Radical) only refers to the speech, and the debate which followed, to urge the ballot as the panacea for the national grievances.....The Standard (Conservative) considers the Government responsible for the violence in Ireland, yet it has failed to protect life and property there.... In the House of Commons to-day, writs were issued for elections in Southwark and Londonderry to fill the vacancies caused by the appointment of Mr. LAYARD as Ambassador to Spain, and of Mr. DOWSE as Solicitor-General for Ireland. Mr. BRUCE, Home secretary, presented a bill to abolish alien laws, and a bill enabling aliens to acquire and hold lands in England. The address in reply to the Queen's Speech was agreed to and the House adjourned. An act of Parliament is proposed to protect foreign inventions sent to the Workmen's Exhibition to be held here.....The merchants of Cork complain of the loss of revenue to that city by the transfer of the shipment of all receipts taxes are now to the chamber pots.....JOHN BRIGHT has gone to the mountains of Switzerland to recruit his health.

VALENTIA, Ireland, Feb. 9.—The cable interruption of telegraphic communication continued day before yesterday to occupy attention. While the Government engineers were repairing the general telegraph cable at London on that day, in order to accommodate the great increase in the telegraphic business occasioned by the change to the system, it was found necessary to cut all the wires to the westward. Communication was soon restored, and the service is now excellent in all directions.

The Schenck Case—Arguments on the Writ of Error.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—In the Supreme Court this morning, the argument in the Schenck case was continued by Mr. MILLER, counsel for the prisoner. He was followed by C. E. McLAUGHLIN, District-Attorney for Carlisle, for the Commonwealth, giving all the facts of the death of Miss SPRINGER, and detailing the chemical testimony brought forward by the prosecution on the trial for murder.

The Frenched Monarch—The "Star-Spangled Banner" Song on Board.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 9.—The Hayden Association, three hundred strong, this afternoon went down in the steamer Mahoning to visit the Monarch. They were courteously received by the officers, and after examining the ship and secured the pieces of music, including the "Star-Spangled Banner," Gamble Company's Band, [illegible] the Monarch gave a dinner on board, and on Friday noon a hop, which will be attended by the élite of the city. On Sunday the Monarch will sail.

CANADA.

The Rowan Anti-Confederate Vote in Newfoundland.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Feb. 9.—The Governor of Newfoundland has addressed a Message to the Speaker of the House of Assembly, deprecating the action of the House in informally voting no confidence in the Government, and expressing that the House should have adopted the constitutional course of assuming to advise the Governor for whom he should send to form an Administration, and expressed the hope that no disrespect to him or his office was intended. The House adopted a resolution disclaiming any intention to act disrespectfully toward his Excellency, and stating that its action was founded on precedent.

ALASKA.

The Indian Inhabitants—The Territory as an Agricultural Country—The Fur Trade.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9.—In compliance with a resolution of the House of Representatives, the Secretary of the Treasury has transmitted to that body a copy of the report of Captain of special agent C. W. RAYMOND, of the Engineer Corps, United States Army. The report gives an interesting description of the various tribes of Indians on the Yukon River and its tributaries, and expresses the opinion that the prohibition to the introduction of arms and ammunition against them will cause great distress, by depriving them of their accustomed means of support by hunting. Captain RAYMOND thinks there will be no difficulty if whisky traders are prevented from furnishing spirits to the Indians. His description of the country explored shows it unfit for agriculture, the only products of that part of Alaska being furs, which can be taken successfully only by the natives. The fisheries and forests of the coasts of Alaska, however, he considers of very great prospective value and importance. In regard to the Fur Seal Islands, he recommends that the number of seals to be killed annually be limited to 100,000; that a proper revenue tax be levied on each skin, and that the business be placed in the charge of a reliable and responsible private company, under proper regulations, whose interests would be identical with those of the Government in preserving the species and preserve the seal fisheries.

THE SNOW STORM.

Eighteen Inches of Snow in Lewiston, Me.—Railroad Travel Impeded in the East—The Storm on the Hudson—Drifts Ten Feet High in Pennsylvania.

LEWISTON, Me., Feb. 9.—The severest snow storm of the Winter commenced yesterday afternoon, accompanied by a heavy gale. About eighteen inches of snow fell, drifting seriously and putting an embargo on travel. It cleared up this morning.

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—Owing to the storm last night all through trains were several hours late. No marine disasters had been reported up to a late hour last night, with the exception of an accident to the steamer Henry Morrison, which, while attempting to leave the wharf at Deer Island about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, was driven against it by the force of the wind, staving in one of her sides and causing other damage.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 9.—Prince ARTHUR and suite arrived at White River Junction at 4 o'clock this morning, the train having been six hours going a distance of sixty-nine miles. No trains will leave the Junction for Boston until the regular noon train. There is a foot of snow reported at Lancaster. There is about eight inches here, and the snow is drifting. Thermometer 26.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 9.—The Hudson River is again closed from Hudson to Albany. The storm has cleared away, and the snow is thirteen inches deep at all points.

HUNTINGDON, Penn., Feb. 9.—Snow commenced falling here on Monday night and continued until Tuesday afternoon, reaching the depth of thirty inches. Drifts reach ten feet and over in some places.

Marine Disasters During the Storm.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 9.—The schooner M. Pillsbury, from Portland for Cuba, with a cargo of shooks, went ashore during the storm of Tuesday night, near Plymouth. The crew are safe. The vessel will be got off if she receives prompt assistance.....The steamer Chesapeake, from Portland for New-York, was aground in Provincetown Harbor to-day. She would come off the next tide without damage.....The steamer Palmyra, from New-York for Portland, passed the Highland Light, Cape Cod, at 3:30 o'clock P. M.

STATE LEGISLATURES.

The New-Jersey Lawmakers—Proposed New Ward in Newark—West Virginia—The Virginia Judges—Missouri State Affairs—Kansas Railroads.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 9.—In the State Legislature, in the House, this morning, petitions were presented in favor of establishing a public park in Newark, and by the Democratic branch of the Newark Common Council asking for the passage of the bill creating the Fourteenth Ward in that city, so that the deadlock caused by the vote of Mr. CAIN, the bolting Democratic Alderman, in relation to the appointment of city officers might be ended. Among other bills introduced was one authorizing the consolidation of the New-Jersey, Hudson and Delaware Railroad Company with the New-Jersey Western Railroad Company and Sussex Valley Railroad Company, the Hoboken, Ridgefield and Paterson Railroad Company, or any or either of them. The bill creating the Fourteenth Ward in Newark came up on its third reading. After considerable debate, its consideration was postponed. A bill was introduced entitled "A Supplement to an act to incorporate the New-York, Elizabeth and Morris Railroad Company," extending the line and empowering them to extend the road to Newark. The Hudson County Hospital bill was ordered to a third reading.

WHEELING, West Va., Feb. 8.—Mr. WELLS' Registry bill passed the House to-day. The people will elect Registration Boards next Fall and thereafter, as required by the bill; but in the meantime the Governor will give the Democrats one member in each Board. Mr. FLICK's proposition for universal suffrage passed to a second reading to-day. The lawyers' and teachers' test oaths were finally repealed yesterday.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 9.—Governor WALKER to-day sent a supplementary message to the Legislature, relating chiefly to routine State matters, referring to the difficulty of finding Judges not disqualified by the Fourteenth Amendment, he recommends that Congress be petitioned for a general removal of disabilities. The establishment of an asylum for insane colored people is also recommended. The Governor also suggests many changes in the administration of the criminal law of the State.

The Conservative members of the Legislature in caucus to-night nominated JAMES McDONALD, editor of the Richmond Whig, for Secretary of State, and WILLIAM F. TAYLOR for Auditor.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 9.—In the House, yesterday, the proposition to pay the State bonds in gold after July 1, was rejected by 21 to 20. The General School law was amended so as to allow women over twenty-one years of age, who are the owners of real property, to vote on questions affecting the raising of taxes for school purposes. The Senate unanimously passed the bill for the withdrawal of all the Missouri State funds in the National Bank of Commerce of New-York, and the payment of all overdue coupons.

The Kansas Senate yesterday passed the House concurrent resolutions asking for a removal of the Indians from the State; for a donation of land by Congress for railroad purposes, with a free regard for the rights of settlers, and to compel the Indians to pay for all stock stolen by them. A concurrent resolution placed the Kansas asking Congress to appoint Commissioners to investigate and report the amount of losses and damages sustained by the settlers on the frontier by Indian depredations.

NEW-ORLEANS, La., Feb. 9.—In the Legislature to-day the Registration bill passed the Senate—yeas 25, nays 13. The impeachment trial of State Auditor WICKLIFFE commences this morning....This morning's Bulletin contains a statement by Judge COOLEY, charging State Treasurer DUBUCLET with defrauding the creditors of the State by discounting their warrants, and using the State funds therefor.

LOUISVILLE, Feb. 9.—The House Committee on Railroads reported a bill in favor of incorporating the Cincinnati Southern Railroad.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

Legislative Changes at San Francisco—Whisky Seizures—A Storm in Nevada.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 9.—The Chamber of Commerce has protested against the bill before the Legislature reorganizing the Fire Department of this city, and has adopted a memorial to Congress, urging the erection of a Government building on Custom House block. They recommend a reduction of pilotage rates, and also the suspension of business on the afternoons of the days of the Camilla Urso Festival. Several hundred barrels of whisky have been seized by the revenue authorities during the past few days, on the same grounds that the 2,000 barrels were seized in August last. Jobbers are now refusing to purchase this whisky until the matter is legally settled....The Legislature has passed a bill changing the name of Lake Tahoe to Lake Bigler....A terrific wind storm passed over Virginia, Nev., to-day. Houses were unroofed, chimneys blown down, and several persons seriously injured. One man was killed.

The treasure product of the State of Nevada last year was $12,818,000, of which $2,154,000 were from the White Pine Mines.

THE COLORED PEOPLE.

Address of the National Executive Committee—Prayer and Thanksgiving for the Fifteenth Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The National Executive Committee, GEORGE T. DOWNING, President, and F. G. BARBODES, Secretary, have issued the following address to the colored people of the United States:

Your National Executive Committee, created by you in the National Convention, assembled Jan. 12, 1869, to urge legislation looking to the educational, material and political interests of the colored people of the nation, deem that they have at length reached, in the progress of their efforts, at a probable political condition of their hopes in so far as the organic law of the Republic is concerned. They recognize that desired result in the anticipated announcement of the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, which forbids any abridgement of the right of suffrage on account of the race, color or previous condition of any citizen of the United States. They feel that this amendment should, in the estimation of the colored men, transcend in importance even the revered Declaration of our National independence, inasmuch as it is the practical affirmation of that declaration, while the other was but the theoretical enunciation thereof. Therefore has it been determined that it is fitting for your Committee to advise the general assembling of the colored people of every State and Territory through the length and breadth of the land, whenever the said Fifteenth Amendment shall have been officially announced as ratified, in order to offer up prayer and thanksgiving to Almighty God, and in all proper ways to assure the world of our realization and appreciation of the righteous act of our fellow-countrymen, in constitutionally securing to us that which has always been our just due, but unjustly withheld. Your Committee does hereby thus advise, and taken occasion at the same time to declare, in your name, that this just act of the American people will be held as its full entitlement by these whom it enfranchises; that they will use such use of the right thereby secured to them as shall add to the honor and material interests of the country, and that in proportion as they of this right, along with the others previously secured, they will feel that they really have a country to cherish and defend, as well as fellow-countrymen towards whom they can cherish the most affectionate regard.

Mr. Seward in Cuba—Reception at Cardenas.

HAVANA, Feb. 9.—Hon. WILLIAM H. SEWARD, accompanied by his son and two ladies, arrived at Cardenas on the 28th ult., from Matanzas. The party was met at the depot by a deputation of the volunteer officers of Cardenas, who escorted them to the hotel. About noon the American residents of the place went en masse to pay their respects to the distinguished visitor, to whom they were severally introduced by Mr. CROSS, the United States Vice-Consul. The traveling party left Cardenas at 3 P. M., in a special train for a neighboring plantation. The greatest respect and attention was shown them by the civil and military authorities, many of whom urged Mr. SEWARD to remain a couple of days in Cardenas on his return.

Miscellaneous Telegrams.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 9.—VALENTINE KLEIN has been arrested on the charge of murdering his own child, a babe seven months old. The testimony before the Coroner was that KLEIN came home drunk, when his wife asked him for money to buy bread, at which he became enraged and took a pot of boiling coffee and poured it over the face and bosom of the child. It only lived twelve hours afterwards.

ALBANY, Feb. 9.—A freight train on the Central Railroad ran off the track between here and Schenectady. One car was badly smashed, but no one was hurt....By the explosion of a boiler in a morocco factory at Amsterdam to-day, a woman named COLLINS was killed.....Three noted desperadoes were to-day sent to the State Prison. One was sentenced for ten years and the others for eight years each by Judge HOGEBOOM, who remarked that his object was to put a check to the increasing crime in this city.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 9.—D. W. KING, commission tobacco merchant, who made an assignment recently, was arrested to-day on a criminal process charging fraud, and gave $2,000 bonds for his appearance at the Police Court to answer. A civil process for damages was also served.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Last night some farmers in the town of Washington, turned out with lanterns, horses and revolvers, and hunted down a burglar, named HAMILTON C. ROBINSON, and brought him to the city and lodged him in jail. ROBINSON entered a farmer's sleeping room about two hours before, and robbed him of $194.

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 9.—The three members of the St. Crispin fraternity who have been before the Municipal Court for several days on charges of conspiracy, were to-day held under bail for trial in the Superior Court.

ATCHISON, Kan., Feb. 8.—FRANCIS BUFFERRESE shot his wife to-day, inflicting dangerous wounds, and then blew his own brains out. Mental derangement was the cause of the tragedy.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—ROBERT ERVIEN, of the firm of ROWLAND & ERVIEN, of the Drexel-street flour mills, died suddenly last evening of hemorrhage of the lungs.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 9.—The Government officers have seized 200,000 cigars, the property of CAMPBELL & BROOKS of Nashville, for alleged violation of the Revenue laws.

SALEM, Mass., Feb. 9.—A man, supposed to be a Mr. BISCLAIR, of Lynn, was run over by a train and killed in Salem depot, last night. The Coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 9.—An arrangement was effected to-day, whereby all through passengers on the Atlantic and Great Western and Erie Railways can have secured seats all the way, without additional cost.

CORRY, Penn., Feb. 9.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Oil Creek and Allegheny Railroad was held here to-day. EDWARD F. GAY was elected President, and for directors Thomas A. Scott, Charles S. Wright, Charles H. Lee, William S. Lane, John M. Kenaday and Edmund Smith. The gross receipts for the past year were $2,074,000, being an excess over the previous year of $200,000.

CONNECTICUT.

From Our Special Correspondent.

HARTFORD, Wednesday, Feb. 9, 1870.

The Republican State Convention convened in this city to-day, in Allyn Hall, and accomplished the work of nominating a State ticket, and of presenting a platform for the next campaign, which was done after a short session, in which the best of spirit prevailed. It was agreed upon all sides that the party could not do better than renominate the old ticket, except Lieutenant-Governor WAYLAND, of New-Haven, who has gone to Europe, and for the nomination to this position there was a little strife; otherwise there was no question to excite the Convention, which doubtless accounted for the body being smaller than usual. The Convention was called to order at 10:30 by Hon. BARTLETT BEST, of Middletown, Chairman of the State Committee, and Hon. ROGER AVERILL, of Danbury, was chosen temporary Chairman. Temporary Secretaries and the usual Committees on credentials, permanent organization and resolutions were also appointed. After a short delay the Committee on Credentials reported a list of delegates, which was adopted. Thirty-seven towns were found unrepresented. The Committee upon Permanent Organization reported a list of officers for the Convention, who were elected:

President—Senator WILLIAM A. BUCKINGHAM, of Norwich. Vice-Presidents—E. W. MORGAN, of Berlin, and twenty others. Secretaries—JOHN TWEEDY, of Danbury; EDWARD R. BENNETT, of Hampton; MARSHALL P. DOWE, of Killingly.

Upon taking the chair Senator BUCKINGHAM congratulated the Convention upon the success achieved by the State Administration, and spoke for several minutes very earnestly in favor of a return to a specie-paying basis.

THE NOMINATIONS.

Upon motion of Mr. JOHNSON, of Putnam, the Convention proceeded to nominate by acclamation candidates for all the State offices, except for Lieutenant-Governor. Upon motion of ROGER AVERILL, of Danbury, Hon. MARSHALL JEWELL, of Hartford, was nominated candidate for Governor by acclamation, the result being greeted with loud applause. Upon motion of ALBERT AUSTIN, Suffield, HIRAM APPLEMAN, of Groton, was nominated unanimously by acclamation for Secretary of State; upon motion of H. K. W. WELCH, of Hartford, DAVID P. NICHOLS was nominated by acclamation for State Treasurer; and upon motion of Mr. NORTHEND, of New-Britain, JAMES W. MANNING was nominated by acclamation for State Comptroller.

The Convention then agreed to take a ballot for candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. An informal ballot resulted as follows:

Morris Tyler	167
Nelson Bassett	72
Scattering	1

Upon the motion of Mr. BURRS, of New-Haven, the nomination of Mr. TYLER was made unanimous, and committees were appointed to inform Messrs. JEWELL and TYLER of their nominations.

THE PLATFORM.

A short recess followed, during which county caucuses were held to nominate a State Committee, after which the Convention came to order, and General JOSEPH R. HAWLEY reported from the Committee on Resolutions the following platform:

Resolved, 1. We look with profound satisfaction and gratitude upon the record of the Republican Party, its devotion to liberty and equal rights, its abundant patriotism in war and its solicitude ever for the freedom and honor of the country in time of peace. We reaffirm our cordial approval of the national platform adopted at Chicago, and the resolutions of the last State Convention.

Resolved, 2. The experience of the past year has confirmed our faith in the integrity, ability and patriotism of General GRANT. We congratulate him and the country upon the general and increasing quiet throughout the land, and upon the late rebel States, the majority of which have complied in good faith with the terms of reconstruction, and they, all but four, by thirty States of the Fifteenth Amendment to the National Constitution, the crowning work of a magnificent struggle for the freedom and equal rights of all men.

Resolved, 3. The Nation at Administration deserves the warmest praise for its economical expenditures of its revenues, for its fidelity to the collection of the revenue, through which it has been able to reduce the debt over eighty millions since March 1, 1869, and yet keep the Army as amply fulfilling the hopes and promises of its friends and justifying the highest expectations of its foes.

Resolved, 4. That the last act of Congress under the Administration was in accordance with our declaration of the true policy by which it fixed a time and manner that when the time arrives, it will be found in no case except where it is otherwise expressly provided in the original contract, and solemnly pledging the United States to redeem the portion of the bonds that practically read, "Payable in coin of United States," payable in coin. We deprecate all agitation in all quarters, whether through taxation of the bonds, or their payment in paper. We are strongly opposed to the expansion of currency, and we call on all sensible wise legislation and practical management of the finances by which we may as speedily as possible, without a shock to business, or a national robbery, resume specie payment, and with it obtain a currency, and uniform currency of coin and of paper immediately convertible into coin, believing that no other currency will secure the just rewards of either labor or capital.

Resolved, 5. In both State and State administrations, we call for a continuance of strict economy in all branches, the rejection of all appropriations or leases of credit for enterprises outside of the indisputable authority of Government, the impartial levy and vigilant and thoroughly honest collection of taxes, the application of a reasonable sum annually to the reduction of the debt, the removal of taxation upon the necessaries of life, and their imposition as far as possible upon luxuries.

Resolved, 6. We favor a tariff abundant for revenue and as far as possible so devised as to relieve labor, encourage the industrious, encourage a diversified industry and avoid strengthening monopolies. We deprecate frequent changes in tariff legislation as disturbing the adjustments of capital and inflicting unnecessary suffering upon labor.

Resolved, 7. We endorse the action of the Legislature and the Board of Education in sustaining our system of common schools, as essential to a prosperous and intelligent Government. We especially approve the efforts made to protect and educate the children employed in factories.

Resolved, 8. We thank the Republicans of the last General Assembly for their patriotic efforts to secure a short and economical session. While inflicting upon public debtors, and particularly our obligations to disabled soldiers, and the orphans of those who died for their country.

Resolved, 9. We gladly welcome the speedily approaching proclamation of the Fifteenth Amendment, and hailing it as a fitting consummation with this act with all other provisions of the National Constitution.

Resolved, 10. We recommend to the General Assembly the passage of a law providing for the election of members of Congress in the Autumn.

Resolved, 11. We heartily applaud the administration of affairs by the Governor and his associate State officers during the past year, and confidently appeal to the people for a triumphant election of the ticket this day nominated.

SPEECH OF THE GOVERNOR.

Governor JEWELL was introduced and formally accepted the nomination. In alluding to the work accomplished by the Republican Party, the Governor said:

It has emancipated a race; it has taken 4,000,000 of people from slavery; it has made them free; it has made them citizens; and, thank God, within a month it will have given them all the rights which belong to citizens. It has given a free homestead to every home seeker on the public domain—a measure which it was impossible for the friends of the laboring men to carry through Congress under Democratic rule. It has established the integrity of the nation of all time and beyond all peradventure, whether attempted by foreign foes or traitors in our midst. It has established the fact that a republican form of government is the strongest possible, as owing to the intelligence and patriotism of its citizens, its producing class can be the most easily converted into offensive or defensive material. It has made the assertion of the Declaration of Independence that all men are created equal, and were endowed with the rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, a living reality, so that now all persons, of whatever race or nation, are, or soon will be over the country, exactly equal before the law. Having accomplished this much it is now turning its attention to the measures of peace and progress which the exigency of the times demand.

The Committee appointed to wait upon Mr. TYLER reported that he was present. He was introduced, and in a few words accepted the nomination, and returned his thanks for the honor conferred. A State Convention was then appointed, after which the Committee, about 1 o'clock, adjourned sine die, with three cheers for the ticket. Mr. TYLER, the new man upon the ticket, was Mayor of New-Haven in 1864-6, and a leading citizen in that city.

THE LEGISLATIVE CAUCUSES.

Democratic Wrangle Over the Commissions.

Judge Bosworth Renominated for Police Commissioner.

A Threat to "Wipe Out" the Board of Supervisors.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Wednesday, Feb. 9, 1870.

This has been a dull day in the Legislature. The Senate transacted little business of interest beyond the passage of the Canal Appropriation bill and making Mr. MURPHY's Excise bill the special order for to-morrow. Mr. MURPHY's bill is similar in its provisions to the Excise law provided for in the new charter for New-York. Both parties are to have a caucus this evening to nominate a Regent of the University and a Police Commissioner in place of Judge BOSWORTH.

THE ANNUAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Assembly met at 8:30 o'clock this morning to consider the annual Appropriation bill reported from the Committee of Ways and Means on Friday last. A great many amendments were proposed and discussed, but the Chairman of the Committee defended the various items of the bill as reported, and few changes of importance were made. A lengthy discussion occurred on the item appropriating $60,000 to the "Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents in New-York. Mr. M. C. MURPHY charged that the Society were in the habit of sending away children, changing their names and their religion, and refusing to their parents all information of their whereabouts; and Mr. FLAGG, of Troy, related a case of a boy 13 years of age, the son of a widowed mother, who was enlisted in the army during the war as a substitute for a son of the Treasurer of the Society, the mother receiving only $250 for the enlishment at a time when substitutes were bringing $1,100. On the other hand, the Society was warmly defended by Mr. WHITE, Mr. BERGEN and others as one of the most useful in the City, and, indeed, indispensable, in view of the 60,000 vagrant children who, Mr. BERGEN asserted, were now roaming the streets of New-York. The discussion resulted in a reduction of $10,000 from the sum appropriated in the bill. The usual appropriation of $15,000 for teachers' institutes in the various counties, which was left out of the bill as reported, was, on motion of Mr. COON, after considerable discussion, inserted. The sum total of the items in this year's appropriation does not vary $80,000 from that of last year when Mr. SELKRNG was Chairman of Ways and Means. The bill was passed as amended, and without transacting any other business the Assembly adjourned to make way for the State Agricultural Society, which convened in the Assembly Chamber at noon, with ex-Senator CAMPBELL, the President, in the chair. The report of the Executive Committee was read, showing that, notwithstanding the low degree of temperature during the past Summer, most of the agricultural crops throughout the State were equal, and those of hay, oats and potatoes superior to the average crops of past years. The branch societies in the various counties were represented as having done little more than hold their annual fairs, and the chief contributions to the science of geoponics were stated to have been received from the Farmers' Club in New-York. The Treasurer's report was read, giving the receipts of the Society for the past year in round numbers $33,000, and the expenses $21,000.

THE CASE OF H. RAY.

The Judiciary Committee will to-morrow present its report on the case of HENRY RAY, member from Ontario, who was arrested and taken to Troy against his will to give testimony before the Grand Jury. The Committee, after a full investigation of the law and precedents in such cases, have come to the conclusion that the action of Judge POTTER and the District-Attorney of Rensselaer County was an unauthorized invasion of the privileges of members of the Legislature, and accordingly they are to be summoned before the bar of the House and receive a reprimand.

SENATOR NORTON'S EXCISE BILL.

Senator NORTON's substitute for the Excise bill provides that intoxication shall not be punishable with fine and imprisonment.

REORGANIZING THE SPECIAL SESSIONS.

The bill to reorganize the Court of Special Sessions in New-York, which was to have been introduced to-day, did not make its appearance. It has been drawn up by the anti-Ring members from New-York, who claim that the Court, as now constituted, only represents Patrick B. SWEENY, and that it is made use of to punish his enemies. The bill merely proposes to repeal the act of 1868, by which the Police Justices of the Fourth and Eighth Districts were constituted the Judges of the Special Sessions, and allow all the Police Justices to hold the Court in rotation. The act of 1868 was passed to enable the Republican Party to have a representation in the Court, Justice KELLY being then on the Bench in the Eighth District; but as all the Police Justices are now Democrats, it makes little difference to Republicans who holds the Court. The bill will be opposed by some of the New-York delegation, and its passage is doubtful.

The Vacant Regency of the University and Police Commissionership—Republican and Democratic Caucuses—Discussion Among the Democrats—The Nominations.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 9.—The proceedings in the Democratic Caucus this evening afford a fair illustration of the delightful harmony now existing in the happy family of the Democrats who compose the majority of the present Legislature. If they are satisfied with the exhibition, their opponents have certainly no reason to complain. The anarchy exhibited by some Democrats to abolish everything bearing the name of commissions throughout the State, merely because it is a commission, suggests the idea that that unfortunate word is destined hereafter to fill the place in the Democratic vocabulary, which the word "nigger" has heretofore occupied. Now, that "nigger" is disposed of, the Democracy will be converted, in future, to fly in a passion and foam at the mouth whenever "commission" is mentioned. The chief importance and the main consolation, so far as decent people are concerned, to be attached to this caucus are the additional evidence it furnishes of the utter impossibility of the dominant party in the Legislature agreeing on any plan of legislation for New-York, or elsewhere, that shall take the place of the Commissions which they are constantly electing there to abolish. If JACOBY' resolution had been adopted, with or without the amendments, it would have been of no avail, for a score of Democratic members were absent while it was discussed, and absented themselves in order not to be bound by any caucus on those questions. They say they were invited to the caucus for a definite purpose, and when that was accomplished there ought to have been an adjournment.

In striking contrast to the Democratic caucus that of the Republicans, held in the Senate Chamber, was characterized by perfect harmony and a dignified and decent manner of conducting business which their opponents would do well to imitate.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

THE REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

The Republicans of both branches of the Legislature met in the Senate Chamber to nominate candidates for Regent of the University and for a Police Commissioner. Mr. ALVORD was Chairman and Senator CHAPMAN Secretary. The vote was nearly unanimous for ex-Lieutenant-Governor HENRY R. SELDEN for Regent of the University. Assemblyman WHITE, of New-York, then offered a resolution declining to make a nomination for the office of Police Commissioner, as the Police Board is non-partisan. He thought it not best to make a nomination, as the Board have been equally divided politically heretofore. Mr. SELKRNG, of Tompkins, thought differently. He thought a good cause had been impaired by apparent temporizing which never benefited the Republican Party. He preferred nominating a capable Republican, and believed the Republicans throughout the State held similar views. Senator KENNEDY, of Syracuse, expressed similar views, and thought that it is particularly incumbent on the Republicans here and everywhere to stand firm and express their views freely; even though they cannot at present control events. Assemblyman GERASON, of St. Lawrence concurred substantially with Messrs. SELKRNG and KENNEDY. Assemblyman WHITE then said that he concurred heartily in the spirit manifested by the other speakers, and withdrew his resolution. Mr. WHITE then nominated ex-Mayor SAMUEL BOOTH, of Brooklyn, which was seconded by Assemblyman SELKRNG, and he was nominated for the office of Police Commissioner. The caucus then adjourned, authorizing future caucuses to be called by the presiding officers.

THE DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

The Democratic members of the Legislature met in caucus this evening to nominate candidates for Regent of the University and Police Commissioner. Hon. WM. M. TWEED presided, and Mr. FULLER, of Saratoga, acted as Secretary. Senator MURPHY named for Regent of the University FRANCIS KERNAN, of Oneida. Mr. FLAGG named Hon. HORATIO G. WARNER, of Monroe; he recognized the abilities of Mr. KERNAN, but thought there was something better in store for him; besides, Mr. WARNER resided in the locality where the vacancy in the Board existed. The vote was taken and resulted: For FRANCIS KERNAN, 54; for HORATIO G. WARNER, 9. Mr. KERNAN was declared duly nominated.

Mr. CREAMER hoped that this would be the last time the Democrats of both branches of the Legislature would be called upon to select a Police Commissioner for a locality. Six years ago a compromise was effected between the leaders of the two parties, by which it was agreed that a non-partisan Commissioner should be appointed. Since then the Republicans treacherously abrogated their agreement when they had an opportunity to elect a Commissioner in place of a Democrat whose term had expired. They violated their pledges, and nominated a Republican in place of a Democrat, thus making the Commission a partisan one. He concluded by urging the renomination of Judge BOSWORTH.

Mr. FIELDS would not select a Police Commissioner as a matter of compliment, and, therefore, was opposed to the nomination of Justice BOSWORTH. The New-York Police Department needed vigor and energy. He spoke for himself and for the great body of the Democracy when he said that so far as Democratic appointments were concerned, himself and others were not under obligations to Mr. BOSWORTH, but to the kind recognition of the opposition. He did not want any action here upon which Justice BOSWORTH could hereafter hinge when the Police Department should be reorganized. Although he had a candidate of his own, if Kings County would present a candidate with a united front, he would go for him, and he had no doubt that he would be unanimously nominated. But if Kings County was not united, he had a candidate of his own—a candidate every way worthy—a man in full sympathy with Tammany Hall, and who would devote himself to the interests of his party. He named SHEPARD F. KNAPP.

Mr. JACOBS said it was understood these Commissions were soon to be abolished. That being the case Kings County did not now want a representative in that Board. He expected that soon a measure would be adopted restoring to Brooklyn her just rights, and she would then be able to take care of herself. He did not ask a candidate at this late day. Kings County had heretofore stood upon her dignity and she would continue to stand there.

Mr. CREAMER vindicated Mr. BOSWORTH, and thought his services should be recognized. Mr. FIELDS withdrew the name of Mr. KNAPP and seconded the nomination of JAMES B. CRAIG. Senator MURPHY said two years ago he had the honor to present in Democratic caucus the name of a gentleman from Kings County for Police Commissioner. He failed to secure his election, and the Kings County delegation voted cheerfully for Mr. BRENNAN. Now a change had come over the State. The Democratic Party is in power, and these Commissions are to be wiped out. He did not now wish King County represented in the Commission for the few weeks the institution was to exist. He preferred that Judge BOSWORTH should be retained. By his action here he did not wish to commit his party to any new arrangement that might be entered into hereafter. The vote was then taken with this result: For JOSEPH T. BOSWORTH, 46; JAMES B. CRAIG, 16; SHEPARD F. KNAPP, 1. Judge BOSWORTH was declared nominated.

Mr. JACOBS moved the following resolution:

Resolved, That the representatives of the Democratic Party of New-York, here assembled, pledge themselves to effect such legislation as will restore to localities the right of self-government and secure the abolition of all Commissions imposed upon the Democratic communities by the Republican legislation of the past years.

Senator M. NORTON wanted all Commissions abolished. Senator HARRENBURGH said the Democratic Party had often spoken out on this subject in State Conventions, and there was no necessity for this resolution. He would heartily agree with the spirit of the resolution, and he doubted not he would also agree with it on a proper occasion. He thought it not best on the last of this caucus to go into this subject. Senator GERRY said the Democratic Party was already committed against Commissions, and it was unnecessary to pass resolutions to that effect. The business of the caucus was ended. He moved to adjourn. Lost. Senator M. NORTON moved to amend the resolution so as to include the abolition of the Board of Supervisors. "The people would do so if they had a chance. It was created by a Republican Legislature, and let us now wipe it out." Senator HARRENBURGH moved to lay the whole subject on the table. Lost. Speaker HITCHMAN advocated Mr. JACOBS' resolution. Senator HARRENBURGH declared that he would not be bound by the action of the caucus on the resolution. He came here for a certain purpose—to make nominations, and not to pass resolutions. Mr. JACOBS thought that it was expected of the Democracy that it should not only adopt this resolution, but act in accordance with it. Senator GERRY moved to amend by adding all Boards and Commissions created by any Legislature or local authorities, wherever they exist. Senator MURPHY could not vote for such a wholesale declaration, abolishing, for instance, the Board of Education of New-York. Senator GERRY modified his amendment so as to read "Boards and Commissions created by

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The writer of this remarkable book says that "his aim has been to furnish the sand, mortar and bricks with which some practical geologist may build up a system of geology in harmony with God's written revelation." We must confess after reading the volume that we think the "practical geologist" would have rather a difficult job to build the harmonious system called for with the materials furnished. The author's facility in "begging the question" in argument is only exceeded by his dogmatism in statement, and the vagaries of his fancy. Thus it is said to be a powerful argument to show that one God is the Author of creation and the Bible, that the triune personality of God is outshadowed through the universe, in the three primary elements of spirit, force and matter; in the three grand divisions of suns, moons and stars; in the composition of the elements of matter out of the three chemical elements of oxygen, hydrogen and nitrogen; in the three kingdoms—animal, mineral and vegetable; and so on. The main design of the book is to propound a new theory, of four geological epochs within the last 6,000 years, and in support of this theory,—or theorem, as the author prefers to call it,—to interpret the Bible with a literalness which allows the philosopher or man of science the alternative to believe without question or explanation, or to be reckoned an infidel, and perhaps an atheist. A great number of statements, scientific, theological, philological and general, meet the reader on every page, but they are without references by which they may be verified, and their number alone, under such conditions, leads to doubts of their credibility. We are sorry to find fault with a work which aims to harmonize Geology and Revelation, but this one not only fails to harmonize,—it widens the existing breach, and adds to the present discord.

This story belongs to the class of what are termed "religious novels." The author seems to think that her work will be severely criticised, because it is opposed to the present ritualistic revival in a portion of the Episcopal Church. We think her fears are groundless, for if all controversial writings were as free from venom and as mild in their statements as Westbrook Parsonage, the Church would be more peaceful, not to say better, than it is. The author traces the married life of a young girl who has chosen for her husband an Episcopal clergyman, through years of mingled cloud and sunshine, which are blessed by the peace of a good conscience, the satisfaction which the faithful performance of duty ever brings, and the favor of God. In the delineation of this quiet, Christian life, there are frequent opportunities for an effective contrast between the principles and practices of what are termed "sacramentarians," and those of the "evangelicals,"—in plain language, the "High Church" and "Low Church" Episcopalians,—and the contrast is always drawn in favor of the latter, but without bitterness or rancor. Some of the characters, like Dr. Hastings and his wife, and Father Morgan, are evidently drawn from life by a loving hand, and therefore inspire a kind of personal interest in the reader, but the book does not rise above the level of works of its class, and its influence and interest will be confined to a small circle of readers.

MRS. GERALD'S NIECE. A Novel. By Lady GEORGIANA FULLERTON. New-York: D. APPLETON & CO. 1870.

Lady GEORGIANA FULLERTON gives us—as she always does—a pretty and interesting story, full of pleasant glimpses of English country life, and introducing several charmingly manifested—not "fast"—young girls. But it certainly seems a violation of decorum and to indicate a want of proper respect for religion to make it a subject of conversation and controversy upon ordinary occasions, and there is a degree of indelicacy in exposing to the public gaze, through the medium of fiction, thoughts and feelings which should be held sacred. The book is written in the interest of Catholicism, the arguments are well maintained, and the Ritualists as well as others have fair play; but the contest seems to be out of place, and runs the risk of becoming tiresome. The character of Ida is beautifully drawn, and there is much pathos and true feeling in the scenes between Annie and her newly-found mother. Edgar, though true to nature, is not particularly attractive, and he is priggish and ill-tempered and scarcely deserves the devotion lavished upon him by both ladies.

The love for good music spreads so rapidly among us that the advantage of being able to obtain the works of great masters at a moderate price is sure to be appreciated. On the productions of such men as BEETHOVEN, MOZART, WEBER and ROSSINI time has no influence, and the tiny but beautifully-executed Souvenirs of these and other great composers before us revive pleasant memories in an attractive form. The music in these little works being engraved, a greater degree of clearness is achieved than is possible by any other process, and the photographic portraits which embellish each number greatly enhance their value.

—The Unabridged American Edition of Dr. William Smith's Dictionary of the Bible has reached part XXII. This edition, which is prepared by Professor H. B. HACKETT, D. D., and EZRA ABBOT, LL. D., the Assistant Librarian of Harvard University, will leave little to desire in the way of interpretation. The subjects are treated with thoroughness and perspicacity, and abundant references enable the student to consult original authorities. In the present number there are elaborate articles upon the Passover, Paul, Pentateuch, Pentecost, Peter, Pharaoh, and other topics. The print of the work is fair, the illustrations excellent, and the entire mechanical execution good.

—The Biblical Repertory and Princeton Review is largely occupied with articles bearing upon the recent reunion of the Presbyterian Church, containing also long reviews of the lives of Dr. SAMUEL MILLER and J. ADDISON ALEXANDER, D. D. It maintains its high literary and theological character by articles upon the "Literature of Civil Service Reform" and "The Reign of Law." Some liberal gentlemen have contributed a fund to send this review for one-third of its price to Presbyterian pastors whose salary is not over $1,000 a year. Such a help to clergymen will be duly appreciated.

—The announcement that Mr. PARKE GODWIN is to take charge, as editor, of Putnam's Magazine, beginning with the April number, will be received with general satisfaction. Long known and respected as a powerful and cultivated writer, Mr. GODWIN, when an editor of the Evening Post, materially assisted in gaining for that journal its important influence; and his name is a warrant for the vigor and literary excellence which we all desire to see in Putnam's, but which have not always been forthcoming. We congratulate on this arrangement the three parties concerned—that is to say, the public, whose advantage is at should be great; the publisher, who, while relieved by the change in one way, cannot fail to be reimbursed in another; and Mr. GODWIN himself, who will find, we may hope, in this new field, congenial employment for his active mind, while avoiding the unremitting strain of daily journalism.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

Speculations Concerning Death by the Guillotine—English Views of American Affairs—Mrs. Stowe on Byron—Free Trade in Cabs—Morality of Fox Hunting—Religious Topics.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 28, 1870.

The affairs TRAUTMANN and the affaire BONAPARTE are out of my beat, and unless the Atlantic combined telegraph companies have struck, you have known all the facts, possibly somewhat more, as they occurred. There is, however, a speculation about the guillotine which is renewed at every execution. It is, whether a man suffers long after his head is cut off. A Paris savant has just published a calculation that the man, residing in his seat of consciousness, the brain, may be tolerably uncomfortable for three hours after his head falls into the basket of sawdust. A hen runs about with her head cut off, and a turtle lives for nine days in the same condition without seeming the worse for its trifling loss. I see plenty of people, also, with no heads to speak of, and TRAUTMANN's was not much loss to him. The French savant, however, gives up the body, and pays all his attention to the head, which, he says, retains its consciousness an hour and is alive about three hours. The man who has lost an arm or leg may be able to imagine the sensations of one suddenly deprived of his whole body.

As you may suppose, Englishmen are congratulating themselves upon their good fortune in being hanged, even by their poor bungling old hangman. I should not have meddled with the ghastly subject only that I happen to have a little smattering of physiology, and can give, perhaps, some comfort to my friends whose heads are likely to be separated more or less from their bodies. The condition of consciousness to the brain is the regular supply of a certain quantity of oxygenated blood. Too large a quantity produces insensibility from apoplexy. Too small a supply produces insensibility from syncopy. The hangman's rope produces almost instant apoplexy; the headsman's ax produces instant syncope. Deprived of blood, the brain has no power to think or feel. The gentleman who invented the guillotine made no blunder, though he never had, as is popularly supposed, an opportunity of personally testing his invention, for he died in his bed, at a good old age, highly respected as a successful philanthropist.

ENGLISH VIEWS OF AMERICA.

As I happen to be just now the power that can the gilt-gig you, to see yourselves as others see you, I must favor you with a bit of leader sent from Birmingham. The Post informs its great midland public that

"Grandeur in size and thoroughness in principle are generally among the characteristics of things and people in America. Their railways counts their lengths by hundreds of miles, where ours are measured by tens; their orchestras embrace the performances of armies of blackamoths and large detachments of artillery; and their ordinary party movements in politics assume the dimensions of immense organizations, with platforms which are to modify not only the action but the character of the population of the whole country. They will pay off a great national debt while we are counting what the interest will amount to; and will add a province or create a new State while we are settling the boundaries of an excise district. On the same magnificent scale most of their operations are planned, and in their trade strikes they maintain the dignity of their nation."

Then it goes on to record the proceedings of the telegraph strike, which, beginning in San Francisco, bids fair to reach to earth's remotest bounds, and may even infect the twenty thousand British and Irish young ladies who, on and after the 20th of January, will send our messages from all the Post Offices of the British Kingdom. But I doubt if these maidens will ever strike. British mothers, in their favorite magazine, have upheld the practice of striking their grown-up daughters, whipping them with canes, straps and birch rods; but I have never heard that the daughters strike back. And my only knowledge on the subject is how they strike a stranger. Hon. GRANTLEY BERKELEY, in the introduction to his latest work, Tales of Life and Death, tells us that "Eve was not afraid of catching the measles because she'd Adam," and our telegraphic young ladies may have as good a reason for not engaging in strikes—they've Adam too. But it is impossible to say what British females may do next year or next week. They have got Mr. J. S. MILL to join them in opposing the extension of the Contagious Diseases act to the civil population, as it is quite enough to protect the military; they have converted Rev. Mr. MAURICE to their view of the case, though he had advocated the other; Lady BOWRING made a speech at a missionary soirée the other night at Manchester, at which her husband Sir JOHN presided, advocating the election of women as members of the Board; in June next girls are to be admitted to the local examinations for degrees of the University of Oxford; and all the celebrities of Edinburgh, Professor MASSON, Dr. LYON PLAYFAIR, &c., go in for the enfranchisement of women, and pledge themselves to support a bill for that purpose in the next session of Parliament.

MRS. STOWE ON BYRON.

Mrs. STOWE's vindication has just been published here, and a few hours after it was issued, the Times, which had been anticipated by the Pall Mall's telegram, came out with a review of four and a half columns. Mrs. STOWE may judge of the effect her vindication is likely to have in England, from the fact that the Times has changed its ground entirely. When her article first appeared in Macmillan's, the Times felt that it could never open BYRON's work again, and declared that "horrible as is the crime now divulged, the unutterable meanness of the man is still more despicable." Now, in the light of the "vindication," Lord BYRON goes out of court, comparatively speaking, without a stain on his character. It finds now that "there is a deplorable absence of all positive testimony," and that Mrs. STOWE, whom some one calls the originator of a hideous libel on one of our greatest poets, "stands before the public with nothing but a bare statement." With the new volume before it, the Times declares the article which made such an impression upon it and the Saturday Review to be "one of those blunders which are worse than crimes." It asks, in view of the whole case as now presented:

"Was Lady BYRON wholly false, or a monomaniac, or deceived by appearances or by Lord BYRON's own habit of mystification? The Times inclines to the latter hypothesis. Lady BYRON honestly believed in her husband's guilt, but was laboring under a dreadful mistake. The crime is so horrible and so unlikely, and the evidence so thoroughly inadequate and unreliable, that the Times recognizes it as at once its duty and its pleasure to 'abide by such an acquittal as the evidence before us leaves us room to pronounce.'"

Here is one of those cases where the absurdity of holding a journal responsible for the different and changing opinions of its anonymous writers comes out with great force. The first review, last August, was wrongly attributed to Hon. Mrs. NORTON. The present is by quite a different hand. In the first article we were assured that Mrs. STOWE's revelations were given on "unimpeachable authority"—now there is no evidence whatever. Thus the terrible accusation "tore the last shred of extenuation from BYRON's miserable and vicious nature:"

"The daylight has thus at last streamed in on the stage romance of Lord BYRON's life, has struck the thin tinsel and the dirty paint, and now the curtain may be dropped, and the play, still dragging on, put an end to."

Now, Mrs. STOWE

"Has come before the world with a grave accusation which strikes at more than one good name, of which she does not produce the proofs."

Something of the absurdity of this seeming incongruency might be saved if the English Press would follow the French fashion, and each writer were to sign his own articles and be personally responsible for the opinions advanced; and this, in my country, is becoming the fashion both with the Republican Editor's names are appended, and the leading Contributors sign their articles. Mr. GARNEAU, Mr. RUSSIN, Mr. MATHEW ARNOLD, Canon KINGSLEY and many others publish nothing without their names. In fact, when a man has acquired a certain reputation the name may be the most valuable part of his contribution. Would any magazine publisher pay dix for twenty lines by ALFRED TENNYSON without the name? A man gets pay not only for what he writes at the time, but for all he has ever written.

FREE TRADE IN CABS.

On the 1st of January the English Home Secretary inaugurated, with considerable pomp and a long proclamation, free trade in cabs for the metropolis. Nearly the whole cost of license was taken off at the last session of Parliament. We were to have, under the system of free competition, cheap and elegant means of locomotion. Every cabman was ordered to place upon his cab the prices for which he was willing to convey passengers, by the mile or hour. The whole thing seems to be, so far, an utter failure. The better class of cabs at higher prices, or any prices, have not made their appearance. The four-wheelers are as slow and dirty as ever. The drivers have not improved in appearance or manners. Nothing is changed, only that you are more than ever at their mercy. The Pall Mall Gazette tells us why we cannot have nice cabs as in Paris, and I hope also in New-York. In Paris, for about half a dollar an hour you can have an elegant carriage, with a neatly dressed driver, fit to take you to the Bois or the Tuileries. In New York, I presume, you have only to raise your finger to have an elegant little brougham or clarence to take you to the Central Park, for a slight advance on the price in Paris. You remember how neat and cheap are the cabs in Vienna—cheaper and more, if possible, than those in Paris. Well, the Pall Mall says that no driver dares to take such a cab on a London stand, because the chaff and abuse of the ragged drivers of the lumbering old machines would be worse than the pillory. Cab public opinion, in short, will not allow of any such cab aristocracy.

MORALITY OF FOX HUNTING.

It has not yet been decided whether fox hunting is immoral, though Mr. RUSKIN is sure that it is; not from cruelty to the fox, for overloaded horses, as well as men and women, suffer a thousand times more—suffer more every day than all the foxes in England ever suffered; but immoral from waste of time and energy. It is certain, however, that hunting is dangerous. A few days ago Sir HENRY HOARE had his horse fall on him at Baron ROTHSCHILD's hunt, and was carried off insensible, and now Mr. SOTHERN, the comedian, has been seriously hurt hunting with the same hounds—"much cut about the face, and shaken."

THE QUEEN.

A paragraph from the Lancet on the health of Her Majesty must interest everybody. It says:

"The Queen, we regret to say, has been suffering repeatedly during the past three months from neuralgia, affecting different parts of the body, and severe enough to seriously interfere with rest. Her Majesty has just recovered from a recurrence of neuralgia, attacking the face severely. The attacks have been attributable to disturbance of the nervous system, due to exposure, worry or excitement."

It must seem very strange that the Queen of England should have her nervous system disturbed, should suffer from exposure, should be worried and excited. But the health of her youngest son has been, for some time past, delicate, not to say precarious, and with a large family circle there may be trials and cares, even in a royal palace.

CHURCH MATTERS.

There has been an important meeting of the Church Institution, chiefly engaged in discussing the abolition of what some call "the blasphemous sham of the congé d'élire." This is strong language, but the fact is also rather strong. The Dean and Chapter of a cathedral meet and solemnly invoke the guidance of the Holy Ghost in the election of a Bishop, whom they have been commanded under heavy penalties to elect by the Prime Minister, and who may be the last man they would think of electing, if not so compelled. The election of Dr. TEMPLE, for example, was against the feelings, and in many cases, the active protests of a majority of the Bishops, 12,000 clergymen, and perhaps two-thirds of the diocese for which he was consecrated. He was forced upon them all by the mere will of Mr. GLADSTONE. It is not strange that there should be a revolt against the temporal power which may be so abused, and that it should hasten the revolution of disestablishment. Imagine, if you can, General GRANT, on the Secretary of the Home Department, appointing the Bishop of Vermont—that is, directing the clergy to elect some friend of his from Illinois—and they, bitterly protesting against the man selected, as a heretical and unfit person, meekly proceeding to say their prayers, and elect him. But, you will say, this is just what the Church of England has been doing for three hundred years. That is so, but that does not signify. The Irish Church has been established a long time, and last Summer it was disestablished.

MONADNOCK.

AFFAIRS IN SPAIN.

The Bourbons and the Throne—Local Abuses—The Regent and the Ministry—Elections—Additions to the Spanish Navy.

From Our Own Correspondent.

MADRID, Wednesday, Jan. 19, 1870.

Senor CASTELLAR was to have presented in yesterday's sitting a project of law for the exclusion of the BOURBONS' rights to the Spanish throne. Several Democrats, desirous of bringing on a rupture between the Liberal Unionists and the Progressists, had come to an understanding with the Republicans on the subject, but when the proposition was to have been presented to the Cortes some of the Democratic members changed their minds and the presentation of the project was adjourned sine die.

The following is the text of Senor CASTELLAR'S proposition:

"Whereas, The vote of the September revolution, expressed in the programmes of all the revolutionary Juntas, has been very explicit on the point of the exclusion of the Bourbon family from the Spanish throne and their perpetual legal incapacity to exercise the functions of first Magistrates of the nation, and whereas, in accordance with the radical revolutionary demonstrations in 1820 and 1848 in France, in 1820 and 1860 in Italy, and in 1868 in Spain, the present government is incompatible with the liberties and democratic institutions which form the basis of our public rights, we, the undersigned Deputies, have the honor of proposing to the Cortes the following project of laws:

"The Constituent Cortes declare all the members of Bourbon blood not only the descendants of the elder branch descending from LOUIS XIV., but also those of the younger branch, descending from PHILIPPE DE BOURBON, Duc d'Orleans, incapable of reigning over Spain. No one among them shall ever exercise the high dignity accorded to the chief of the State by the Constitution of 1869." (Here follow the signatures of seven Republicans and one Democrat.)

The Republicans want to exclude all the BOURBONS for ever, but the Democrats do not desire that the project shall be quite so radical. They desire to add the words:

"Always provided that the sovereign will of the Constituant Cortes shall not decide otherwise."

It is tolerably certain that this proposition—adjourned at present—will be presented by Senor CASTELLAR, and rejected by a great majority of the Cortes.

ABUSES.

Senor FREDERICO RUBIO, a Republican Deputy, has asked the Cortes to nominate a Commission to make a parliamentary inquiry into certain rogue committed against him at Cermenas, where he had intended to watch the elections of Municipal Councillors. He charged the Mayor and the military commander of the place with having insulted and assaulted him. General PRIM declared his ignorance of the facts stated by Senor RUBIO, but promised to seek information on the subject, and to suppress such abuses by severe measures. He added that he believed the military Commander of Cermenas to be guilty of abuse of authority. Senor RIVERO, Minister of the Interior, said that, even supposing that Senor RUBIO had not exaggerated facts, the House had nothing to do with the case. If Senor RUBIO had to complain against the action of civil or military authorities, he had the means of redress from the Supreme Court of Justice. Senor RIVERO, he said, could only complain to the Chamber in case that the Judges did not do their duty. The Republican Deputy withdrew his proposition. This discussion, which had been announced the day before, attracted more than ten Deputies to the legislative hall, but the moment it was over they all left to take their usual stroll. This will show you what stuff the Spanish Deputies are made of. When necessary laws are to be passed, not above three or four dozen of them are to be found in their seats; but the moment party quarrels are to be decided, they rush in after their leaders like a herd of sheep. Poor Spain!

THE REGENT AND THE MINISTRY.

Some journals devoted to the Ministry assert that the most cordial harmony reigns between the Regent and the actual Ministry. This is false. I adhere to the statements made to you in regard to this in my last and former letters. The same difference of views exists still between the Duke DE LA TORRE and the Cabinet presided over by General PRIM. The latter is too ambitious to concede so easily to the Regent the powers which Marshal SERRANO demands as the sine qua non of his retention of office. General PRIM is supported in this case by the Republicans, the Democrats and a majority of the Progressists.

ELECTIONS.

You know that the elections of about forty Deputies are to take place at the end of this month. The struggle will be very fierce indeed. The Minister of the Interior decrees that the Authorities should set the example of respect to universal suffrage, but in the towns where the Monarchists are in a majority, severe conflicts between them and the Republicans may be expected. The Mayors, who are always addicted to excess of zeal, have even refused identification tickets to the Republican electors, so as to keep them away from the polls. The Justices of the Peace and other officials employ all sort of underhand measures to insure the triumph of the Monarchical candidates. Real liberty of suffrage exists only in Madrid.

THE NAVY.

To conclude my letter, I may tell you that the Minister of Marine will shortly order the construction of twelve new gunboats.

ITALY.

The New Ministry and its Future Policy—The Spanish Throne—Interest in the Trials of the Bonapartes—Threatened Overflow of the Arno.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FLORENCE, Saturday, Jan. 15, 1870.

The forty days which intervene between the adjournment of Parliament and its reunion in the first week of February give the new Ministry ample time to chalk out a plan of policy. The new men have come into the exercise of power, strictly pledged to economy in the Administration, and where to strike out, pare off, and abolish, is that upon which their ingenuity is now exercised. The army and the navy are the first objects of attack, and large numbers of placemen in the civil service are trembling as they wait for the order which is to cut off their stipends. It has often been asserted that there are twice as many in the public offices as are needed for the work to be done. Many of them have an easy time of it, and although the pay is small, the aggregate is considerable, and the wealth of the State would be augmented if they were to engage in more active employment. Various statements are made as to the maximum of reduction of expenditure which the Cabinet sees its way, more or less clear, to make. The sums named vary from thirty to well towards fifty millions of francs. About one-half of the amount is to be taken from the cost of maintaining the army and navy, and the rest distributed in economies in the administration of justice, and even in the department of public instruction. It is proposed to abolish several universities now dependant upon the treasury of the State—a step which may be taken without hurting the cause of popular instruction. This will receive more of the fostering care of the Government, as it finds itself in possession of increased means. Something like twenty universities, so-called, are not independent or self-supporting, and lean hard upon the lid of the treasury chest. The talk of touching the army has caused a flurry of feeling in military society, and there have been rumors of a purpose among officers to commit the unpatriotic act of resigning in mass—this novel sort of strike to be used as a means of defence against the smaller individual loss, and great public gain, which would come of proposed changes.

THE SPANISH THRONE.

A variety of opinions is expressed in the journals as to the feeling of the King touching the late decision of the mother of the boy-Duke of Genoa and the Ministers on the Spanish throne question. It is asserted that VICTOR EMMANUEL is not satisfied, and that he is ready to consider the matter favorably if it should be again presented. The question has been so much debated that it has lost all quality of spontaneity, and it seems highly probable that the Spaniards will be obliged to look in another direction for some one to serve their ends. The Italians rejoice that the Spaniards have become anti-papal, and are following in a liberal track, but the majority of them care little for the choice to be made of the head of the State, as a political or personal question.

THE TRIALS OF THE BONAPARTES.

The affair of Prince PETER NAPOLEON BONAPARTE, at Paris, and the general subject of the excited political condition of France, interests the Italians quite as much as if they were a part of the French nation. The BONAPARTES are so much more Italian than French, that such an interest in the directors of affairs in France is easily understood. The connection of the Prince CACIOCCIO with the Italian revolution is known to everybody here, and the present conspicuous position in the Catholic hierarchy of the son, the Cardinal LUCIAN BONAPARTE, and his possible elevation to the chief place in the Papacy, give importance to the branch of the family. Another brother of PETER BONAPARTE is ANTONIO, long resident in Florence, on a pension from the Emperor of 100,000 francs a year. He has never been granted full rights as a member of the Imperial family; but whether because he married the daughter of a small lawyer at Lucca, or for some other reason I do not know. Here, on occasions of ceremony, such as a Court ball, this BONAPARTE has a place of honor, partly out of respect to the French Imperial family, and partly on account of the connection by marriage of the BONAPARTES with this royal stock. For the rest, the Italians, who have given the French so good on example of the enjoyment of great liberty without abuse, watch with solicitude to see that their ardent neighbors do not make a misuse of their newly acquired privileges, and turn their freedom into a political debauch. The difference of temperament between French and Italian populations is not so great as to make one less capable than the other of self-government.

THREATENED OVERFLOW OF THE ARNO.

The principal cause of solicitude in Florence this week has been the threatened overflow of the Arno. The heavy rains of a few days and the warm African winds started the masses of snow on the mountains, twenty or thirty miles above this, and sent down a surging current of such bulk and velocity as to menace the city with one of the old, much-dreaded, but happily rare disasters. The recent and experience of Pisa has reminded the Florentines what serious damage their Arno, usually so quiet and harmless, can in its rage inflict. On Monday, as the rain continued to pour, the river rose rapidly to the very brink of the massive parapet which keeps it in. Half the population of the town rushed to the bank, expecting to be witnesses of a serious event. Along the line of the river workmen were busy walling up lower windows, and the corps of pompiers was as active as if a conflagration threatened the city. For eight or ten hours the measure was kept full, but did not spill a drop, and at the proper hour the Florentines were able to go to bed feeling that the danger was passed, and that they should not have the dirty job of removing from cellars and streets immense deposits of yellow slime. No rush of waters could do much injury to the buildings of Florence, so solid is the construction—a method inherited by the present inhabitants from their Etruscan ancestors. It would be difficult for such a crack in the whole town. The lower tier is of the best quality, and united with a grit sifted from the disintegrated rock deposited in the bed of the Arno, it forms a cement hard as stone itself, and the waste of centuries hardly leaves any trace of decay. Were labor is required to pull an old structure here to pieces, then it does to build a new one with us.

PITTSMAN.

Florence is now full of foreign visitors, and the innkeepers are smiling with content as they accumulate make out long accounts for Americans and others to pay. MME. RISTORI, returned from her South American expedition, is playing an engagement at the respectable second-rate theatre, called the Le Leggie. She plays about as well as ever, some say, but hardly draws full houses. Among Americans now here, are Mr. JOHN CARTER BROWN, of Rhode Island, and Mr. CHARLES ELLIOT NORTON, of Cambridge.

CURRENT NOTES.

California has 40,000 Indians.

The Boston Traveller predicts that Gotham will be crowded with Down East ice next Summer.

How to kill time—sleigh it. [This joke is old, but it is one of those made not for a day, but for all seasonable times.]

Canada is talking of issuing fractional notes as a part of its scheme to rid the country of foreign silver coins.

Governor PALMER, of Illinois, pardoned 108 convicts last year, including four convicted of murder and twelve convicted of manslaughter.

The price of gas in Sacramento, Cal., has just been reduced from $5 per 1,000 feet to $7, and on the 1st of May it is to be further reduced to $3.

The Columbus Journal says that there will be strong opposition to the renomination of Judge LAWRENCE for Congress in the Fourth District of Ohio.

The Richmond Dispatch does not look approvingly on the movement to organize a new political party in Virginia, saying: better let well enough alone.

A Mr. PANCAKE announced himself as a candidate for reflection to a local office at a recent town election in Illinois. The voters, however, perversely refused to return him.

Burglars went through Congressman DAWES' house in Pittsfield, Mass., a few days ago, but took nothing of value, so far as has yet been ascertained.

A New-Hampshire young man, who says it is his first attempt at a joke, confides to Current Notes his belief that the Book of Nature is rock-bound.

A Tennessee railroad conductor, who bore the name of SLAMER, never received any testimonials from the commutation ticket holders. Possibly because his first name was JOSEPH.

A California paper rejoices that even if the new County of Donner is set up, Nevada County will retain Humbug, Gongeys, Red Dog, You Bet and a few other uniquely-named localities, though it will lose "God's Country."

The Quebec Mercury says that it is proposed to buy American silver in Canada at five per cent. and sell it to the United States, and that $1,000,000 in half and quarter pieces have been ordered.

Congressman DAWES has been invited to address the Indiana Republican State Convention, which meets on the 23d inst. His engagements and duties in Washington will not permit him to accept.

A Nevada paper insists that Tahoe in the Indian tongue means grasshopper, and objects to the proposed change of the name of the lake by the California Legislature to Bigler, contemptuously asking what that means.

A man in Cincinnati a few days ago suddenly lost the sight of one eye, without any premonitory symptoms. To all outward appearances the eye is as good as ever, but the sight is entirely gone.

ALEXANDER GARDNER, a negro, is to be hanged in New-Kent County, Va., to-morrow, for being accessory to the murder of a lady and her overseer. The principal in the murder escaped from jail pending trial, and has thus far eluded arrest.

The death of another old defender of Baltimore is just announced in the papers of that city. We surely do not wish these "old defenders" any harm, but certainly the supply seems equal to the severest demands which Death can make upon them.

One thousand workmen were discharged from the Mare Island, Cal., Navy Yard on the 31st ult., in compliance with the order of the Secretary of the Navy. The flagship Pensacola, the Lackawanna and the Dakota are left with their repairs but half completed.

When the Arkansas River steamer American was sunk, with a loss of five lives, on the night of the 26th ult., a number of the deck hands attempted to rifle what baggage could be got at, but the colored porter alone made fight against them, and kept it safe for its owners.

The Boston Board of Trade has recommended the repeal of all State laws and regulations discriminating against non-resident business men or their agents, condemning these local restrictions as at variance with the spirit of our institutions and detrimental to the interests of the country.

The Raleigh Standard frankly says to the members of the North Carolina Legislature that, if the State's bonds are now repudiated, the credit of North Carolina is forever gone, and the names of those who forced such a disgrace upon her will become the most infamous in her history.

The Rochester Union says that HUGH JOHNSON, one of the Americans wounded in Havana, was a machinist, a resident of that city for years up to December last, when he came to this city. On the 7th of January he sailed for Havana to act as agent of a drug firm in New-York. His wife and two children are in Rochester.

A Democratic paper in Georgia has no doubt, from the immigration of mules into the State during the past year, that they are largely in the majority. The Democratic papers of the State generally seem to feel called upon to become the special champions of that class of humans. The other party, however, it must be admitted, is governed by a BULLOCK.

The Democratic Newark (N. J.) Journal says that it joins its contemporaries of the Press in recommending the unanimous confirmation of Mr. JOSEPH P. BRADLEY, of that city, as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, saying that he would bring to that position judicial talents and acquirements of the highest order.

The Hartford Courant says that the liabilities of DANIEL W. KING, tobacco merchant, of that city, are understood to be very much greater than at first supposed, and will reach $60,000 or $100,000. There is much talk, it adds, of "irregularities" in the case, and it is asserted that there are no assets forthcoming to speak of.

The Charleston lady managers of the South Carolina Monumental Association have made another appeal for aid, saying: "To the martyred dead of our sad, but glorious past, it is now our effort, combining with our sisters throughout the State, to raise, in the capital of South Carolina, a monument which shall aid in fixing upon the future of our land the memory of that lost cause, of which there remains to us little but the hallowed grave."

A kind lady in Lewiston, Me., had a rare pleasure the other day. Finding by chance a girl of 15 years, a cripple from birth, who had never seen any portion of the city, except the little visible from the window of her humble home, she took her in her sleigh and gave her an hour's ride. It was the poor girl's first introduction to the world, and everything was new and strange. The Falls excited her enthusiastic admiration, and the crowds of sleighs and people on the streets seemed to her like a fairy creation.

A San Francisco maid, who had striven in vain to win the love of a young man, finally procured a powder, and telling him that that would compel him to love her, threw quantities of it into his face and on his head. The villainous compound crept over his beauteous face and poisoned cuticle and curly auburn. But it made him hate her, and when he got out of the hospital he started at once to have her arrested for an assault. But none of the Justices could define the offence, and he was finally advised to commence a civil action for damages against the loving prisoner.

A Massachusetts clergyman recently said that it was the abiding mystery of his life how mature men and women, with minds well fitted by experience, and eyes clarified by faith, can sit passively, and even with amusement, while a bald-headed youngster struggles to get out of his nest of a pulpit into the hearts of his hearers. He has seen, he added, a young cobin, an absurdly futile creature, make the effort of muscular Christianity; but with all the mother's chirrup and gesticulation, he could only manage to balance himself one frantic moment on the edge, before tumbling into the grass, "an incompetent fledgeling."

However it may be with sublimity and ridiculosity, there is not a step between politeness and impudence. Yesterday afternoon as a gentleman was waiting for a car two ladies, young and fair, stepped near him and entered into a brisk mock battle as to which should run the risk of coughs, colds, consumption, and all their attendant ills, by crossing the street to drop a letter into a box. With an impulsiveness worthy of the true Celt, the gentleman deferred politely, as he thought, impudently as they knew, asked to be permitted to do the little favor for them. Of course one of them turned upon him silently with deep indignation flashing from her eyes, while the other tripped through the lay slush and dropped the letter in the box. And of course he learned what he ought to have known before, that politeness ends with giving up one's seat in a street car or in the fury, and handing up a lady's fare in a Broadway stage.

Heavy Suit Against the United States.

From the Richmond (Va.) Enquirer, Feb. 7.

Commissioner CHANDLER has been engaged lately in taking depositions to be heard as evidence in the suit of J. M. MADDOX and others against the United States Government. The suit is for the sum of $704,000, the value of 422,000 pounds of manufactured tobacco, which was destroyed by the United States Government, at Hamilton's Crossing, on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, in March, 1865. The plaintiffs claim that the tobacco was deposited at Hamilton's Crossing for shipment through the lines into the United States, and that both the United States and the Confederate States Governments had agreed to allow the shipment to be made by that route, and that the tobacco was destroyed by United States troops in contravention of the agreement by the Government. The deposition of L. B. ROSS, of Fredericksburg, was taken on Saturday.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The Sanitary Committee on the Concrete Pavement—Interesting Report on Smallpox.

The regular weekly meeting of the Board of Health was held yesterday, Mr. HENRY SMITH in the chair. Dr. JOHN M. CARNOCHAN, the new Health Officer, who is ex-officio a member of the Board, appeared for the first time and took his seat. The chief matter of public interest developed during the session was the report of the Sanitary Committee, composed of Drs. STONE, CRANE and SMITH, on the concrete pavement in Fifth-avenue, which was referred to them at the last meeting, with a view of determining whether it came within the jurisdiction of the Board by being prejudicial to the public health. The Committee report that they have made a full investigation of the pavement, and after a careful analysis of its ingredients, they are of opinion that it is necessarily and actually hurtful to health, and in this view they have the support of several distinguished physicians, among whom is Dr. LEWIS A. SAYRE. The counsel of the Board was joined with the Sanitary Committee in the investigation, in order that he might report the proper action to be taken to extirpate the nuisance, and as he was not present at the meeting yesterday, no action was taken in the matter.

Sanitary Superintendent HARRIS made a report with regard to the smallpox, in which he said:

"An epidemic of smallpox became an inevitable fact twelve months ago. It was announced as being certain to come. Facts which we kind and mentioned to the Board in December last, and even as early as June of that year, gave us more anxiety in regard to the inevitable course of smallpox than could have been caused by cholera. We then estimated that 100,000 persons in the City were not protected by any adequate and trustworthy vaccination. Early in February the medical officers of this Board began to vaccinate and urge vaccination in the more unprotected portions of the City. Still the disease gained rapidly by means which the Board could not reach and control. Upwards of a million of people, and nearly seven hundred thousand closely packed in crowded tenements, presented a task which could only be partially completed before Midsummer. Only the children and wholly unvaccinated persons could be vaccinated. Previous to July 15 the Sanitary Inspectors had vaccinated about 43,000 persons of these classes, mostly young children, and 20,000 were vaccinated in the month of June. Using selected and carefully cultivated virus only, almost the entire stock which matured week by week was required by the Board's physicians. During the months of July, August and September, smallpox ceased almost completely throughout the populous parts of the City in which the work of child vaccination was nearly complete. For example, in the Sixteenth and Twentieth Wards, which had no less than sixty-eight cases of smallpox under our care in the months of May and June, where also the disease was malignant in character, there was exceedingly thorough work in the home to house vaccination, and from July 25 to Dec. 1, only seven more cases of the disease occurred, and those mostly where the offer of vaccination had been refused in June. The subjoined records show that in the three months ending July 1, 202 cases of smallpox came under the observation of Sanitary Inspectors; and that in the next succeeding three months 177 cases of the same disease were reported to us. The office records show that nine-tenths of the cases during the latter period were found in the East Houston-street District; and further that these were almost exclusively German and Irish young infants of Germans. The particular district in which these events occurred occupies less than one square mile and contains nearly 260,000 inhabitants. The tenement house Sanitary Survey found in many of the single blocks or squares 2,500 and even 3,000 permanent residents. The work of vaccination was not intermitted, but as the cold weather came on, and families shut up their apartments more closely, the contagion spread from more than a hundred centres in that Eastern District; and from the last week in October until the last week in January, we have had to take charge of 400 cases of smallpox (mostly varioloid,) and chiefly within the narrow limits of the district which is bounded by East Twenty-third-street, the East River, Broome-street, Houston-street and First-avenue. In the duty of vaccinating and house to house inspection, the entire medical corps has been on duty incessantly; the Sanitary Superintendent's office being closed only from midnight until 3 A. M. daily, and no effort or toil being spared in the duty of the hour. During all this time the pupils in the public schools have, so far as we are informed, escaped free from smallpox, except in the case of five unvaccinated children. The duty of vaccination in the schools was generally well attended to last June. The following table presents a statistical record of the epidemic, showing the number of deaths from smallpox, by quarters, for the year ending Dec. 26, 1869, and by weeks from Jan. 1 to Feb. 5, 1870:

	Deaths in Hosp.	Deaths in dwell.	Whole No.	No. of cases
Jan. 1 to March 31, 1869	3	5	18	30
April 1 to June 30, 1869	17	26	47	202
July 1 to Sept. 30, 1869	15	14	29	177

THE LATE JAMES T. BRADY.

Proceedings of the Bar of the Metropolitan Advocates in the Supreme Court—Resolutions of Respect—Speeches of Messrs. Evarts, Fullerton, Hamilton, Fish, W. Graham, and others.

Yesterday afternoon a bust of the late James T. Brady was placed in the Court-room of this City, by the Committee of the Law Institute, appointed on the 3d of March, 1869, to procure a suitable memorial of the deceased.

The ceremony took place in the General Term Room of the Supreme Court, which was filled to overflowing by representatives of the Bench and Bar. Among the former were Judges Ingraham and Cardozo, of the Supreme Court; Judges Barnard, Mullett and Spencer, of the Superior Court, and Judges Charles P. Daly and Van Brunt, of the Common Pleas. The Bar was very extensively represented. Among the prominent members thereof we may mention James W. Gerard, John W. Edmonds, Charles A. Rapallo, John E. Parsons, Charles Tracy, E. A. Whitehouse, William O. Traphagen, (a former law partner of Mr. Brady,) John McKeon, J. T. Brady, Charles A. Dayton, George Jones, C. F. Southmayd, E. Delafield, Thomas E. Bennett, ex-Judge John K. Porter, A. P. Nash, E. C. Benedict, Nathaniel Hazen, A. S. Brownell, A. S. Hall, Frank Bunnell, J. S. NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The political disturbances in Paris were renewed at midnight on the 8th inst., but firearms were not resorted to by either side. The Police continued to make arrests and the military were still held in readiness. The fresh disturbances occurred nearer the centre of the city, and at considerable distance from the scenes of the first outbreak. New and more formidable barricades were erected, and the assaults of the Police frequently repulsed. The military then carried the barricades, but without firing a shot. The Marseillaise, ROCHEFORT's paper, did not appear yesterday, all the editors having been arrested. At 6 P. M. yesterday all was quiet. In Marseilles a slight demonstration was made, but the crowd was dispersed by the Police....The London journals comment variously on the Queen's speech. The Times thinks its timidity on the Irish question is redeemed by the courage shown in the Fenian matters; the News finds an argument in support of the ballot in the speech and debate, and the Standard says life and property in Ireland are unprotected and the Government is responsible....A bill is promised to enable aliens to hold property in England....The interruption to the telegraphs in Ireland is ascribed to changes in London, made necessary by the increased business since the transfer to Government of the lines....Dr. DOLLINGER is bitterly denounced by the Ultramontane Party in the Ecumenical Council for his protest against the infallibility dogma.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, a bill was reported from the Judiciary Committee admitting Mississippi unconditionally, as a substitute for the House bill. Mr. WILSON introduced a bill to increase the number of Judges in the United States Supreme and Circuit Courts; and the bill to change the judicial circuits was reported from the Judiciary Committee with amendments. Mr. CHANDLER introduced the bill of last session providing for a new railway from Washington to New-York, and new telegraph and railway lines from Washington to Pittsburg and to Cincinnati. Mr. MORGAN made a long speech on neutrality, in which he took the Government to task for permitting the building and selling of the Spanish gunboats, and for its treatment of Cuba. The House Census bill was discussed and finally tabled by a vote of 46 to 9. And, at 5:15, the Senate adjourned.

In the House the Foster-Covode contested-election case was disposed of; the minority report, declaring FOSTER elected, was rejected by a strict party vote; and the majority, declaring COVODE elected, was adopted. Mr. COVODE was then sworn in. In Committee of the Whole the Legislative Appropriation bill was considered. On motion of Mr. DAWES the salaries of the Sergeants-at-Arms of the Senate and House were fixed at $4,320 each. Some discussion occurred on a proposition of the same gentleman to strike out the appropriation for the Globe reporters, and finally it was rejected. Information was ordered regarding the recent murder of American citizens in Havana. The House adjourned at 5:10.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate yesterday the bill to extend the term of office of the Collector of Taxes of Kings County was reported, and a bill to amend the Public Printing act. The bill making appropriations for maintaining the canals was passed.

In the Assembly, the only business was the consideration of the General Appropriation bill. An amendment appropriating $249,000 to pay the state-war State debt in coin was rejected. The appropriation for the New-York House of Refuge for Juvenile Offenders was reduced from $60,000 to $30,000. The item for the Deaf and Dumb Institution was cut down from $80,000 to $40,000, and, after other changes, the bill passed. The House then adjourned.

GENERAL.

The Connecticut Republican State Convention met yesterday in Hartford, Hon. Rogers AVERILL, of Danbury, Chairman. Senator WILLIAM A. BUCKINGHAM was chosen President, Governor MARSHALL JEWELL, of Hartford, was renominated for Governor; MORRIS TYLER was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor, and the whole of the present State ticket was renominated. The resolutions adopted congratulate President GRANT and the country on the cessation of reconstruction and the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment; favor the payment of the national debt in coin, and denounce repudiation in all forms.

The State Agricultural Society met yesterday in Albany, and agreed upon Utica as the place for holding the next State Fair. SOLON B. THOMPSON, of Johnson County, was elected President, and TUCK H. FAILE, Jr., of New-York, and others, Vice-Presidents.

Government officers in Nashville, Tenn., recently seized 200,000 cigars belonging to CAMPBELL & STORR, of that place, for alleged violation of law.

It is reported from Fort Stanton that the citizens had recently organized an expedition of sixty men to pursue the Mescalero Apache Indians.

The Waverley Steam Flouring Mills, Tioga County, N. Y., were totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning; loss, $65,000; insurance, $22,000.

The argument in the case of Dr. SCHOMPER, convicted of the murder of Miss STREEPER, began yesterday in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on a writ of error.

The recent snow storm greatly obstructed the roads in New-England. Eighteen inches of snow fell in Lewiston, Me., and thirteen along the Hudson River, about Poughkeepsie. The train on which Prince ARTHUR left Boston was six hours in making sixty-nine miles, before reaching White River Junction, yesterday morning. Thirty inches of snow fell at Huntingdon, Penn., and drifts ten feet deep formed.

Among the nominations sent to the Senate yesterday was that of JESSE R. GRANT, to be Postmaster at Covington, Ky.

The Registration bill passed the lower House in West Virginia yesterday, and Boards of Registration will be elected next Fall.

Governor WALKER, of Virginia, yesterday sent a supplementary message to the Legislature, suggesting, in view of the difficulty of finding persons to fill the Judgeships, under the Fourteenth Amendment, that petitions be sent to Congress for the removal of all political disabilities of the people of the State.

The Missouri House of Representatives yesterday amended the General School law so as to permit women over 21 years of age and the owners of property to vote on school tax questions. The Senate unanimously passed the bill to withdraw all Missouri State bonds in the National Bank of Commerce of New-York, and to pay all over-due coupons.

A shock of earthquake was felt in Richmond and the vicinity, on the coast of Maine, about 7:30 P. M. on the 8th inst.

Three more volumes of the Roll of Honor have just been published by authority of the War Department, containing the record of over fifty thousand graves of Union soldiers.

Caucuses of the Republican and Democratic members of both branches of the Legislature were held last night in Albany to nominate candidates for Regent of the University and Metropolitan Police Commissioner. The Republicans nominated for the latter office ex-Mayor BOOTH, of Brooklyn, and the Democrats renominated Judge EDEWORTH. For Regent, the Democrats nominated FRANCIS KERNAN, of Oneida.

A bust of the late JAS. T. BRADY was presented to the Law Institute of this City yesday by the Committee appointed to procure a memorial of the deceased.

The Liberal Club met last evening and discussed the questions of public education, and the elevation and depression of the surface of of the globe.

Judge INGRAHAM, presiding in the Court of Oyer and Terminer yesterday, ordered the release of Warden STAGGS, who was imprisoned for contempt by an order of Judge MCCUNN. The order of Judge INGRAHAM was made on the ground that, under the statute, while the Court of Oyer and Terminer was in session, another Judge out of Court could not entertain a motion on a writ of habeas corpus to inquire into the cause of detention of any prisoner.

Mr. Gladstone's Opportunity.

If any one wishes to appreciate the progress of liberal ideas in England, it is only necessary to read the Queen's speech on the opening of Parliament last Tuesday. The ballot is half promised, the land laws in Ireland are to be completely modified, there is to be a bill for the enlargement of the means of national education, the religious tests in Universities are to be abolished, new rating laws are to be introduced, and there is foreshadowed the beginning of those measures for the reform of the land system in England which the rich have long dreaded, and the poor long prayed for. This is a comprehensive programme for a Ministry to announce through the mouth of the Monarch. Times have changed since men were transported for fourteen years for daring to recommend Parliamentary Reform, or were sent to prison for presuming to suggest that the taxes were somewhat burdensome.

The most significant circumstance in connection with this advance of opinion and principles is that Radical measures are proffered not by the representative of a minority in the nation, but by the most powerful Minister who has directed the affairs of England since the days of PITT. We doubt, indeed, whether PITT was ever actually so strong as Mr. GLADSTONE is at this moment. PITT played a desperate game, and was always liable to suffer the penalty of failure. But Mr. GLADSTONE is asked to do nothing more than carry out certain internal reforms which he has eagerly advocated for years past. When a man's heart is set upon a great work, and the power to accomplish that work is suddenly placed in his hands, we have a right to look for great results. Mr. GLADSTONE is absolutely master at the present time of the destinies of England. He has an enormous majority in the House of Commons at his back. The vast bulk of the people are cheering him on. The opposition party is weak and disorganized. Even Mr. DISRAELI's genius can do nothing for the Conservatives. The days has gone by when the Prime Minister was little more than a puppet in the hands of the Sovereign. Mr. GLADSTONE has more power than the Queen, and it is difficult to say what measure he could not pass through Parliament if he chose to bring all his strength to bear upon it. He occupies the grandest position which any man of his country has been able to boast of since Parliamentary Government was known.

A liberal programme—a "truly liberal" programme—is therefore no more than all the world had a right to look for from his hands. He has dwelt much upon the wrongs of Ireland; in a certain sense, it may be said that he has made much political capital out of them. Now it is within his power to redress those wrongs. But his hand must not pause there. In England he will find want more widely spread, and discontent more deeply seated, than at any period within the term of his own life. By a strange oversight this subject was not even alluded to in the speech prepared for the Queen. It cannot be so ignored in Parliament. The abolition of "religious tests" will not put bread in the mouths of the hungry. It may be a task of great difficulty to provide a remedy for the hardships under which the English laboring classes at present smart. But we have been taught to believe that Mr. GLADSTONE is a very great man, and the people have put unlimited power in his hands in order that he may settle difficulties which weaker Ministries could not attack. The cries of the distressed operatives and mechanics of England reach to every part of the world. We seem to hear them in this country night and day. It might inspire any statesman to perform noble and memorable deeds to see these thousands of helpless men before him, with the knowledge that he had the power to raise them out of their misery if only he could find out the way. To that problem Mr. GLADSTONE must address himself, if he would save the credit of his name, and retain the position which was conferred upon him amid the acclamations of the people.

The Senate's Disability Bill.

Special relief has once more carried the day in the Senate against general amnesty. Mr. STEWART's proposition for a sweeping removal of political disqualifications, with sundry specified exceptions, was withdrawn at the request of its own advocates, lest it should imperil the bill for individual relief which it was designed to amend. We must infer, therefore, that the time is not ripe for a measure of general amnesty.

Nevertheless, we remain convinced that Congress can take no wiser step than the one Mr. STEWART has proposed. We believe that it is wise, alike as viewed on public and on party grounds. The Republican Party conditionally committed itself to the amnesty policy at Chicago. Its Northern wing has no desire to continue the pardon-peddling programme of the old Administration any longer than is possible under the new Administration. Its Southern wing has made its fights and won its victories on the express or implied agreement that general amnesty should be the watchword of success. Take, for example, the declaration of Governor WALKER's Message in behalf of "universal amnesty and impartial suffrage." Take, again, the resolution of the Virginia Legislature on the same day, and on the very day, by the way, that the United States Senate gave the cold shoulder to a similar proposition—a resolution which was adopted by 109 to 10, every colored member voting with the majority, and which asked Congress to remove all the political disabilities of the people of Virginia. Or, take as an illustration, the similar action of the Legislature of Mississippi, after the work of reconstruction had been consummated; or, once more, the similar feeling and purpose in Texas and other distinctively Southern States; or, finally, the declarations in behalf of a general removal of disabilities by the Radical Governor and Legislature of Missouri.

It has been alleged that the Southern members of Congress are themselves opposed to amnesty. We do not think so. Our correspondent, it is true, in describing Tuesday's scene in the Senate, says that "nearly all the Southern members were thrown into a flurry in an instant, and ROBERTSON, of South Carolina, and WARNER were on their feet to interpose objections, and were seen talking to Mr. STEWART on the subject." But the Southern members have hitherto, at least, shown themselves very noticeably generous in the treatment of political opponents, and patriotic and moderate as regards reconstruction in general. We do not see why they should be expected now to breast the tide of public opinion in their States, which sets strongly towards general amnesty.

What is needed is that a broad measure of relief, including all persons not specially excepted from its provisions, shall be substituted for the policy of dispensing favors at retail. It has been repeatedly shown that this last is not only undignified legislation, but is specially subject to impositions and false representations. Mr. SUMNER himself laments certain instances of premature grace; and in general it may be said that there is room for much dishonest practice and for many unjust discriminations.

The Worst Enemies of France.

Rioting continues in Paris, but the "insurrection" proclaimed by the irreconcilable FLOURENS hangs fire. The old revolutionary élan that swept away the Ministry of GUIZOT and the throne of LOUIS PHILIPPE is altogether wanting. In February, 1848, the National Guard fraternized with their fellow-citizens, and sided them in restoring the Republic; in February, 1870, the National Guard stands grimly apart, and with loaded Chassepots awaits the order that would pile the ineffectual barricades with heaps of slain. In 1848 the people were led by men capable of counsel and statesmanship, and who, for a brief period at least, made the revolutionary Government respected over Europe. Then, LAMARTINE boldly declared to the frightened thrones of the Old World that France had become the centre of a vast revolutionary propaganda, and not a nation in Europe but felt the magnetic thrill emanating from a people that had risen in its might to demand its inalienable birthright of liberty. Then, the democracy descended into the streets for a cause which they understood, and an object which was attainable, and if the prize they had clutched was very soon snatched from their grasp again, it only showed that an enduring love of freedom had not yet ripened into a capacity for self-government, and that free institutions grow less by sudden starts than by continuous development.

But where shall we to-day look for revolutionary leaders, or cause or object of revolution. The natural heads of the Republic of the future are not in this movement. JULES FAVRE, SIMON, PICARD, PELLETAN, BANCEL, GAMBETTA, even are denounced by the agitators of the Marseillaise, the Reveil, the Réveil and the Réforme, as men who no longer speak, or think, or act. ROCHEFORT himself, reckless and blatant as he is, had become too prudent for his associates. The demagogues of France to-day are FLOURENS, for whom the Marseillaise held doctrines all too moderate;—DELESCLUZE, who lately twitted ROCHEFORT's constituents with having elected a poltroon;—MILLIERE, who proposes a socialistic republic, in which the State is to give work to all the unemployed, and in order to be better able to remunerate them, is to suppress nearly all the taxes;—and VERMOREL, who lately made an unfortunate attempt to be moderate, and was thereupon denounced as being an agent of Imperialism; men who are, indeed, firmly united in hating the existing Government, but hopelessly divided in distrusting and hating each other. Liberty is an empty sound in the mouths of demagogues like these, who cannot, even in the hour of struggle, subordinate their petty personal jealousies to the cause they profess in common. It was the dissensions of men infinitely greater that rendered possible the 2d of December and eighteen years of despotism, and the free and regenerated France of the future has no worse enemies than the pamphleteers who are playing at revolution and inviting the institution of a dictatorship more grinding and absolute than the last.

Here are the words of the Marseillaise of the 16th January: "If the Empire must fall in blood, we are ready to open the subscription of death; if, in order to help it in dying, it must have two or three hundred throats to strike, they will be forthcoming." The two or three hundred have been indeed forthcoming, but we doubt much that the valiant M. HARENECK, who penned these lines was not among them. The Empire is still standing, and all good and true men in France are sad over the spectacle of causeless conflict and wasted lives.

Relief for the People Without Loss to the Treasury.

Every householder will recognize the difficulty which has weighed upon people of moderate means, the past few years, in the matter of building. Few could venture either to build or to make additions to their buildings, on account of the exorbitant price of lumber; and this increase of price is due almost entirely to the increased duty. The tax is twenty per cent. ad valorem, the percentage charged by the importer making it about twenty-five per cent. This became specially operative on the expiration of the Reciprocity Treaty early in 1866, as most of our foreign lumber comes from the British Provinces.

A supply of foreign lumber is absolutely necessary to meet the wants of this country. How great these wants are may be judged from the fact that in 1865 249,959 men were employed in the carpenter's trade alone in the United States, and sixty-six trades were reported as dependent upon wood for their material for manufacturing. We must have the lumber, therefore the duty falls upon the American consumer; and wherever the foreign lumber enters into competition with home lumber, the duty will add so much to the price of the domestic material. This is clear in principle, and is justified by facts.

We imported in 1869 about $7,500,000 worth of rough lumber, and our own product is estimated for that year at $54,000,000. The price of mixed lumber had risen in Chicago from $9 50 per thousand feet in 1861 to $17 70 per thousand feet in 1867 and $15 10 in 1868. In Albany the value of pine lumber had risen from $14 46 in 1861 to $27 42 in 1867 and $25 95 per thousand feet in 1868. In Canada itself the prices of lumber have been higher on the average since the duty and the expiration of the treaty than before. These dry figures show that the duty of twenty-five per cent. has added more than one-quarter to the price of all the lumber in the United States—for, adding the difference of one-third to the prices of 1861, to equal the depreciation of currency, we still have an increase of over fifty per cent. They also show that the American consumer pays on all his lumber the duty laid on a small portion of foreign lumber. In other words, taking the importation of 1868, the consumers of foreign lumber paid a duty into the Treasury of $1,323,000, while all the community paid for the lumber interest a bounty of some $13,000,000. This enormous tax paid to the lumber growers means a tax laid on every man, woman and child in the country. If twenty-five or thirty-three per cent. is thus added to the price of lumber, so much must be added to rent, to the cost of fences, of buildings, of railroad ties, and of everything which depends on rent. This tax is felt throughout the nation; no one escapes it; it enters into almost every manufacture and the daily expenses of every household.

But the reply of the organs of high taxation will be "We protect the manufacturer; why should we not protect the lumberer?" The plain and sufficient answer is that the lumber interest has not needed any protection. It has been a highly prosperous branch of trade. Even without a duty on raw lumber, imported from the British Provinces—as was the case before the repeal of the Reciprocity Treaty—the lumber merchants were doing very well. They called for no bounty to help them. On the contrary, when the question came up before Congress, in adopting the internal revenue system, whether an excise duty should be laid on native lumber, the dealers and producers claimed very justly that lumber, being a raw material, necessary in nearly all manufactures, ought to be exempt from excise. This claim was acknowledged by Congress. Why, then, should the community pay a tax on it, laid as a Customs duty?

It may be claimed, again, by the high taxation party that lumber has not risen in value more than other commodities, or than the wages of labor. Only a slight glance at prices in the lumber market will show the fallacy of this assertion. Spruce in the Albany market was $10 per thousand feet in 1861; in 1868 it was $20. Hemlock, in 1861, was $8 50; in 1867, $20; and 1868, $21. Black walnut was $40 in 1860; in 1868, $70. Pine rose from $14 46 in 1861 to $25 95 in 1868. In Chicago, after the repeal of the treaty in 1866, the prices advanced at once from thirty-three to fifty per cent.

The removal of the duty on lumber would be a far greater relief to the whole people than those forms of tax reduction which would diminish absolutely the revenue to an amount equal to the relief afforded. But the removal of the duty on lumber would only deplete the Treasury some $1,200,000, and save the people generally, at least $12,000,000, or one-fourth the value of all the lumber sold. The lumber interest do not need this bounty. Why should the whole community pay a tax which is not necessary either for protection or revenue?

Harbor Encroachments.

Ex-Senator FRELINGHUYSEN, of New-Jersey, appeared before the Committee on Commerce of the Senate the other day, and made an extended argument in opposition to the bill "for the preservation of the harbors of the United States against encroachment." This bill is framed in accordance with the suggestions of the New-York Chamber of Commerce, and refers immediately to the wharves and piers of the New-Jersey Central Railroad, now in process of erection in Communipaw Bay. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN appeared as the representative of the Company, for which he is the legal counsel, and which was especially alluded to in the memorial of the Chamber of Commerce. The bill itself, however, is general in its application. It provides, first, for a Commission of five persons, empowered to define the boundaries of the principal harbors of the United States, and to prescribe the limits beyond which no structure shall be erected, unless it be by the authority of the United States; and, second, the Commission may recommend to Congress the removal of such existing obstructions as they think ought not to exist, and all work on piers and wharves is to stop immediately at their direction.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN's argument is directed against the constitutionality as well as the policy and necessity of such a law. He reviews the history of the treaty of 1834 between New-York and New-Jersey, and insists that if the right recently asserted by the Courts of New-York to sovereign jurisdiction as far as low-water mark on the Jersey shore is conceded by the treaty, then New-Jersey must also, by the same contract, have sovereign control over the erection of wharves and piers on all the northern and western shores of Staten Island. Indeed, this construction seems logically to follow, and it was for this reason that we urged, previous to the action of the Chamber of Commerce, that the Federal Government should be made not so much the arbiter between the two States as the protector of its most important port of entry. Such was also the intent of the Chamber in its memorial, and such is the intent of the bill now before the Committee of the Senate. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN's not pertinent to the issue in this particular, for however judicially correct the recent order of the New-York Courts enjoining the Central Railroad of New-Jersey may have been, it is an order that cannot be enforced by any process known to our laws. It would be well, then, to leave the difference between New-York and New-Jersey out of the discussion. That was the object in the appeal made to Congress. It is wished to set up a power higher than either, and independent of both.

The constitutional objection made by Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN is far more important, as we originally pointed out. He urges that the New-Jersey jurisdiction over the wharves and piers upon its shores is supreme and inalienable, and that not all three parties, the two States and the General Government, combined, are competent to give to New-York sovereign and political jurisdiction across the river, and so make a portion of New-Jersey a province of her sister State. In this he omits any mention of the Admiralty jurisdiction of the United States, and similarly neglects to allude to the fact that it is now the settled policy of the Government to vest in Congress the control of all river and harbor improvements in which two States are interested. Thus, the harbor of Buffalo is a Government work, upon which the National Treasury has expended millions, and is still engaged in vast works of construction, not in aid of Buffalo, but for the common benefit of the upper lake region.

The second argument of Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN is one of positive force, and if he is correct in his practical conclusions, the entire subject may be dismissed. He insists and quotes some distinguished authorities to show that the capacity of the Narrows between Forts Wadsworth and Hamilton is the gauge of the space needed for the inflow and efflux of the tides, and the importance of the "reservoir spaces" has been largely overestimated. It has been believed that the flats of Communipaw, the Kill von Kull and its storage basin, Newark Bay, and the general room for expansion of the volume of the tidal wave over a large surface, prevent strong currents, which would otherwise sweep up and down the North River with unmanageable force. The argument of the Central Railroad is that their constructions do not really diminish the reservoir spaces; that they dredge out as much as they fill in, and that the basin they occupy will hold as much water, and, therefore, accommodate the tides to the same extent after their piers are constructed as before. Moreover, the railroad claims that any added force of the tidal current which may be caused—though they deny that any is caused—would only have a tendency to deepen the channel, as it has done in the case of the obstructions on the East River, so that there would be, after all, the same area of cross section of channel, without raising the tides or accelerating their force. And finally, they say that they are not filling in broad acres of land, but only carrying out substantial piers and deepening the water between them, so that vessels may discharge or receive cargoes at their sides.

Now this is the very point in regard to which positive knowledge is desirable. The Central Railroad of New-Jersey is in effect a New-York institution. We are willing to see it prosper because we prosper with it. But we have a higher interest in the preservation of the harbor of New-York, and the whole country shares in that interest. It is certainly within the powers of scientific research to ascertain the actual mathematical value of these reservoir spaces, whether a substitute can or cannot be provided for them, and, finally, whether the class of works now being built at Communipaw are likely to do either harm or good. The bill pending in the Senate proposes the appointment of five experts for this purpose, and vests them with powers which are sufficiently ample to deserve careful criticism. But in the end there is an entire community of interest between New-York and New-Jersey. We need her railroads, the Central as much as any of them. They need a good channel and easy tides along their upper river front as much as we. The controversy ought never to become a quarrel, and the more both parties study the facts and avoid undue harshness of language, the sooner are we likely to arrive at a sensible conclusion.

The Connecticut Republicans dispatched their business yesterday with a celerity which betokens energy and harmony. All the present State officers were renominated, with the exception of Lieutenant-Governor WALLACE, who is in Europe; MORRIS TYLER, of New-Haven, is put forward in his place. The resolutions express hearty approval of President GRANT and his administration, and echo the policy with which the Republican Party is identified. The speech of the Governor has the ring of the true metal.

Judge DOWLING has sent a man to prison for six months for pointing a loaded pistol at another and threatening to shoot him. This is the kind of warning which cowards who draw pistols on unarmed men will be likely to remember. Said the Judge, "During the present year there have been no less than five murders, or attempts to murder, in the City and county, for every day." The proper administration of the law is all we need to correct this. When Judges and lawyers who are as bad as the infamous Jeffries and Scroggs of another age and country, contrive to get possession of cases, we can scarcely expect to see life or property respected.

Mr. BENEDICT ought to be much flattered by the testimonial which the cock fighters pay to him. He has aroused their hatred—a sure sign that he has done his duty. It appears that he recently captured several fighting "roosters," and that the "fancy" are afraid he means to dine off them. We hope the latter fear will be realized, for the birds will be much better off in a pie than in a cock pit. One of the chief promoters of the sport, called "Mike," is willing to "bet his head against a cent" that he and his friends get the better of Mr. BENEDICT. The odds are not so great as they sound, but we are rather afraid of the worthy Mike's boast, that no Judge will dare to convict the cock fighters, and that they have made it "all right" at Albany. Nevertheless, we hope Mr. BENEDICT will go on depriving life of its special sweetness for these ruffians.

A bill introduced into the Senate recently seems to go a very roundabout way to accomplish a necessary reform. It is designed to prohibit members of Congress from recommending to any department of Government applicants for office. Senator WILLIAMS went still further in the same direction, and desired to prohibit the Judicial, military and naval officers, as well as members of Congress, from recommending applicants. A hundred ways of evading such a law as this could be invented without difficulty. Why not take the straight road at once and alter the conditions of admission to the civil service? The competitive system would relieve members of Congress from the press of applications which they now have to endure, and save them from the disagreeable task of begging places for their candidates. There ought to be only one door to the civil service, and the only key to that door should be merit.

The Labor Reform people in New-Hampshire have formally taken the field as a political party, and as such will act in the coming canvass. They have got their candidate for Governor, and their full State and local tickets; and the only remaining question is, what they expect to accomplish. The Concord Telegram says that they expect to defeat Governor STRAWN before the people; but, in the first place, they have no grievance against Governor STRAWN, and, in the second place, Governor STRAWN will unquestionably be elected by the Legislature, if not on the popular vote. They also hope to "defeat an election of United States Senator next June;" though what special good that will do either the State or themselves it is hard to see. The labor people, like the temperance people, and many other social organizations of the day, ought to content themselves with selecting for their suffrages the best men of the two great political parties, and not to insist on making their single idea, whatever its intrinsic merits, the pivotal one in a general election.

Serve on juries, by all means, but do not believe in everybody who says that he is a Sheriff's officer, empowered to call for your attendance. There are many imposters about in the guise of Sheriff's officers, and perhaps they are not much worse, as a rule, than the genuine article. One of the counterfeits demanded $5 of a merchant the other day, in consideration of procuring his exemption from all duty as a juror. The merchant paid the money, only to find that he had been duped. It does not need a jury on his case to return a verdict of "serve him right." When an intelligent man pays a bribe to evade an important duty, especially at a time like the present, he deserves to suffer.

In the House of Commons, Mr. DISRAELI was heartily cheered, and Mr. GLADSTONE was immensely cheered. But these cheers were no longer the preliminaries of a grand and lively "set-to," as in "the brave days of old;" and the change and drift of British politics have deadened the Parliamentary animosities a good deal. The chief theme seems to have been Ireland, and on this the late Premier and the present thought pretty nearly alike, for both agreed that the difficulties were great, and that the Catholic priests were the very good friends of Government, while Mr. GLADSTONE complimented Mr. DISRAELI on his moderation. The "ins" and the "outs" seem no longer inclined to discuss a merely partisan policy, as TENNYSON might say. Even if the Irish trouble were out of the way, the English "emigration" movement is enough to make them all forget their personal and partisan differences.

"And come again together on the King,

A few days ago, in one of the wards of the city, a colony was formed for emigration to Kansas and settlement there; it is understood that similar enterprises are afoot in other wards. What seemed to us then especially commendable in this project, and desirable in all future ones, was its neighborly element. If we may believe the most experienced judges, this feature is the key to success in Western emigration. "We suggest to parties coming to Kansas from the Eastern States," lately said the Lawrence Republican Journal, "that they come in colonies, prepared to form neighborhood settlements of their own." There is a second important point mentioned by the same paper, which we commend to attention, namely, that no colony should go to Kansas until a committee has carefully examined every part of the State and made arrangements for land purchase and transportation. "Our railroad facilities are such," says this authority, "that a committee can make the entire tour of the State in a very short time." Such investigation is the course of prevention against a weight of disappointment.

Some time since the Congressional Committees were plied with arguments, and we think with petitions, by the advocates of woman's suffrage, to allow women to vote in Utah. They declared that this would prove the death-blow to polygamy. Now, however, the Territorial Legislature is about to confer the ballot on women, and the Governor is not likely to interpose his veto. Here, then, is a difficult, but a decisive field for a great cause to conquer. If woman votes simply in accordance with their husbands, they will vote to uphold polygamy, hideous evil as it is; if they vote freely, as we are told they will, polygamy will speedily go down. If polygamy is peacefully overthrown in Utah through the instrumentality of woman's suffrage, there will probably be no more opposition to woman's voting throughout the United States. Here, then, is a prize worth contending for.

We are assured that the "New-York Gas Company" does its utmost to prevent the necessity for such complaints as we referred to yesterday in an article upon bad gas at a high price. The letters we have received, indeed, did not relate to this particular Company. The managers state that any of their customers can have their meters tested and examined whenever they wish it, and if they choose to go to the central office, a full description of the process of reading a meter will be given to them. Moreover, any complaint of inaccuracy in the accounts is instantly looked into. It is only to be regretted that this way of doing business is not more general.

The other day, in the House naval debate, Mr. BAKER, in order to show the vast superiority in strength of wood to iron, remarked that "the effect of wooden ships against ironclads was well shown in Mobile Bay. I have heard Admiral FARRAGUT say many a time," continued Mr. BAKER, "that he would meet any iron ships with the wooden vessels he had under his command." A great name like FARRAGUT's is apt to be made the cover for the propagation of extraordinary opinions. At Mobile FARRAGUT had more iron ships than the enemy did. When our famous sailor lately made his visit to England, the papers of that country, both the popular and the scientific ones, quoted him as saying of the fifteen-inch gun, "You may put 100 pounds of powder into it if you like, but we do not." The fact is that at that moment our boys at West Point and Annapolis had tables in their textbooks of the results of such firing, which, indeed, was familiar practice here. In like manner, FARRAGUT probably did not rob himself of half his credit in conquering with wooden ships by representing them as being as shot-proof as iron ones.

The storm of Tuesday appears to have disturbed not only the telegraph wires in the country, but those connected with the new fire alarm in this City. The fact is worth serious attention. A conflagration is very rapidly spread during high winds. Would it not be well to consider whether burying the wires is not a better and safer plan than hoisting them on poles—these ugly fringes of our streets? The plan is not by any means uncommon, and its adoption is easy enough. The Fire Department may think differently—we merely "throw out the suggestion."

It is announced that Mr. EDWARD SEYMOUR, who for about two years past has been connected with the well-known house of CHARLES SCRIBNER & Co., publishers, of this City, has been admitted as a member of that firm. As a journalist for several years subsequent to his graduation at Yale College, Mr. SEYMOUR showed high mental capacity and much culture, and these characteristics, combined with excellent business qualities, admirably fit him for the new position he has assumed. His present associates, not less than himself, are to be congratulated upon the business association they have formed.

General John E. Wool's Will.

From the Troy Whig, Feb. 8.

Yesterday the will of the late General WOOL was presented for probate in the Surrogate's Court of this county. The will is dated March 17, 1868. One of the codicils is dated Nov. 2, 1869, and the other Nov. 5 of the same year. The testator directs that there shall be given to his wife, SARAH N. WOOL, his residence on the corner of Ferry and First streets, to be used by her during her life. The horses, carriages and harness belonging to him—except his military saddle and equipments, which are given to CHESTER GREENWOOD—are also bequeathed to her. A mortgage for $6,000 given by HELEN M. HICKS, together with $20,000, is bequeathed to Mrs. WOOL. One year after the decease of his wife the executors are directed to pay to his niece, ELIZA MORGAN, the sum of $20,000. The following bequests of money were made:

To Asher Riley, $20,000; Caroline Riley, $20,000; Ann Riley, $20,000; Asher Riley Morgan, $20,000; Sarah Wool Morgan, $5,000; Eliza Baldwin, per annum, $250; Benjamin B. Wool, $7,000; Foster Wool, $5,000; John E. Wool, Jr., (cousin of deceased,) per annum, $600; Amos K. Hadley and wife, $5,000; Rev. Duncan Kennedy and wife, $1,000; Joseph W. Moulton, brother-in-law, $1,000; Sarah W. Cooper, $1,000; Brevet Major-General Cram and wife, $4,000; Colonel Alexander Hamilton, Jr., $5,000; Brevet Major-General Arnold, $5,000; William Lawrence, $500; Anna Letson, $1,000; Sarah Jackson, $1,200; William H. Jackson, $1,000; John A. Griswold, $5,000; John Wool Griswold, $5,000; Mrs. Rush C. Hawkins, $1,000; Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, $20,000; Troy Orphan Asylum, $3,000; Day Home, $2,000; Catholic Orphan Asylum, $3,000; Executors, each, $5,000.

JAMES H. DAVIS is given the full use of the house now occupied by him on Ferry-street. JOHN WOOL GRISWOLD receives on the death of Mrs. WOOL the homestead. The first codicil gives an additional gratuity of $20,000 to JOHN W. GRISWOLD. The second authorizes the executors to pay to Mrs. WOOL a sum not exceeding $50,000, to be expended for a monument. This codicil also gives to William Colburn $5,000. To the heirs of ROBERT WOOL $25,000 are given. CHESTER GREENWOOD receives $10,000; each of the other children of JOHN A. GRISWOLD receives $5,000. Generals HARDEE and TOWNSEND are bequeathed $2,000 each. JAMES DAVI

"MARIA DE ROHAN."

The performance of "Maria de Rohan," at the Union League Theatre, on Wednesday, was so successful as to deserve marked attention. As we have previously said, the representation was devised by Signor RONCONI, for the benefit of the Samaritan Home for the Aged. In this benevolent project, Signor RONCONI was assisted by several amateur vocalists of distinction, by Signori G. BOY, CHALIEN and MARZO, and by Mr. MAX MARETZEK. "Maria de Rohan" was chosen as a work little known to our public, and originally written for him by DONIZETTI, one in which Signor RONCONI has gained high European fame. Tickets for the opera were placed at $5—the small size of the house making a high price essential to substantial results—and efforts were made in fashionable circles to make the occasion brilliant and memorable. These efforts, we are happy to say, were abundantly productive. The house was well filled, in spite of the rough weather, and the audience were delighted with an entertainment that, all things considered, deserves very high praise. Signor RONCONI'S assumption of Oberoman was really magnificent, and although for some reasons his performance might possibly have been more striking at the Union League Theatre than it would be likely to prove at the Academy, we hope the public may be allowed to see it at the latter theatre. Such a performance has decisively a wholesome influence on public taste. It would not be easy to compute the improvement of a community in dramatic perception and appreciation that arises from witnessing the efforts of such artists as FACHITER or ROMANI. In the third act of "Maria de Rohan" the latter gentleman is positively great. The effect of the awful revelation of his wife's unfaithfulness and his friend's treachery is depicted by him as only genius can depict it. He was in excellent voice, too, and sang with plentiful force and volume. Mr. MARETZEK should certainly let this personation be seen at the Academy. It is hardly gallant to speak otherwise than at first of the fair representative of Maria. Yet we are sure Mrs. GULAGER will pardon such a precedence in the case of an artist like RONCONI, who is so famously identified with the part he assumed. Mrs. GULAGER sang with remarkable taste, accuracy and feeling. Her voice is one of the purest and softest of sopranos, and her stage action, for an amateur's, is free and natural. The lady has every reason to congratulate herself upon the favorable impression she created in a very arduous undertaking. Miss RONCONI'S sweet and delicate organ was heard to advantage in Gondi, and she sang the best song given to that reprehensible gentleman so well as to command an encore. Signor BOY was rather stridulous and emphatic in Rosordo, but he sang the music in a manly and conscientious fashion, and was much applauded. The chorus and orchestra were good, and Mr. MARETZEK conducted with his usual dexterity and precision. The distinguished company present broke up in rare good humor, which, but for the blundering confusion in which they found their carriages jammed together below, might have followed them to bed. Should other similar performances be undertaken at the Union League Theatre—and the success of this may well warrant them—this matter of the carriages should be properly regulated. That five hundred people should be kept for an hour shivering in the cold because of non-attention to a perfectly easy arrangement of detail, is simply intolerable.

"LINDA" AT THE ACADEMY.

The star of DONIZETTI is for the moment in the ascendant. His "Maria De Rohan" on Tuesday at the Union League Theatre, and his "Linda" last night at the Academy, were produced to the audiences that seemed amazingly to relish his music and that were enabled to judge how vastly fine setting has helped to keep alive its popularity. Signor RONCONI'S Antonio is better known here than his Oberoman, and we have so recently called attention to its merits as to render present encomium superfluous. To-morrow night this admirable artist is to sing Rigoletto, thus completing a trio of characters very arduous to assume within four days, but which strikingly show the variety and extent of his powers. Miss KELLOGG was hailed with delight last evening in "Linda," compelled to repeat her opening air by enthusiastic demands, and applauded throughout with a vigor that proved how firm a hold this charming young artist has secured upon the affections of the public. Miss KELLOGG was in excellent voice and spirits, and improves visibly in person as she matures. Her singing in "Linda" was marked by her customary delicacy and executive facility, and her total freedom from exaggeration made her performance so exceedingly pleasant one both to hear and to see. Mme. ELISA LUMLEY was favorably received as Pierette. She has a telling contralto of compass and training, and has evidently studied in a good school. The Carlo of Signor LOTTI was pleasing, but the gentleman lacks force and presence for so important a part. The concert room rather than the stage is, we should say, Signor LOTTI'S most fitting arena. We have not, however, heard Signor LOTTI before in opera, and it is scarcely fair to judge from a single performance, and it must be admitted that his singing in the latter parts of "Linda," and notably his scena in the second act, rose considerably above mediocrity. Signor REYNA did his best with the Prefetto, and at times was more than good in it. The music has, however, some dangerous pitfalls and snares for his rather uncertain organ, and he did not pass through the ordeal without occasional mishaps. For the rest, the opera was evenly sung, and did credit to the chorus and orchestra, as well as the principals. To-night the "Grand Bal d'Opéra" comes off at the Academy. A large number of tickets have been disposed of, immense preparations for festivity have been made, and it is expected the occasion will prove a "pyramidal" success.

MR. MOLLENHAUER'S SYMPHONY.

We again call attention to Mr. EDWARD MOLLENHAUER'S new symphony, or as he prefers to call it, Grand Symphonic Tone Painting, "The Passions." This elaborate work is to be brought out at Steinway Hall for the first time, on the evening of Saturday, Feb. 12, and will be repeated on Sunday night, the 13th inst. Mr. EDWIN BOOTH will greatly aid the attraction of the performance by reciting COLLINS' poem, which has suggested Mr. MOLLENHAUER'S composition; and there will be an orchestra of sixty and a chorus of two hundred performers. We trust that the expectations of the public and of the composer will be amply fulfilled by the results of this important performance.

To-night's Bal d'Opera.

The annual Bal d'Opéra occurs at the Academy of Music this evening. Two full orchestras will be in attendance, so that the assemblage will not lack either dance or promenade music. We are informed that tickets are to be procured at the box office of the Academy tonight, as well as during to-day.

The Mormons on Long Island.

At present the Mormons on the Island are under the charge of Bishop ROBERT T. BARTON, who is also Major-General of the MORMON Militia. He is assisted by Bishop FRANCIS A. MANWOOD and Elders A. M. CANNON, WM. BROMLEY, WM. W. RITER, BENJAMIN HULES and RICHARD BROWER, of Utah, and Elders J. M. BENNEDIT and ALBERT PRESTT, of Long Island. Outside of Williamsburg only two branches have been established, one at Freeport and one at Christian Hook. There are about fifty members connected with the Freeport branch, most of whom are new converts. Elder STANSON K. BENNEDIT, the keeper of the Queens County poor, and for over thirty years a member of the Church of the Latter Day Saints, is connected with this branch. Besides converts baptized at these two places, they have been made and are ready for baptism at Baldwinsville, Pattogue, Riverhead, New Village, Good Ground, Coram, Setauket and Port Jefferson. At all the above places meetings have been held, and the Saints have met with more or less success. A majority of the new converts are young ladies between the ages of 18 and 25. It is the intention of General and Bishop BARTON to send out as many of the converts as will be persuaded to Utah in the Spring. Most of them, as far as they have been canvassed yet, are very enthusiastic to emigrate to the Territory. The Mormons claim that their mission on this Island will move; first, the mission of mental opinion in their favor; second, the ministry of new converts, and third, the forming of a nucleus on the Island.

WASHINGTON.

The House Census Bill Virtually Killed in the Senate—Burning of the Georgia Malcontents—Senator Sherman on Neutrality—Settlement of the Western Colorado Case—Admission of Mississippi—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The Census bill of the House, prepared at so much cost both of money and time, was killed in the Senate to-day, and the admission was made that the body was unable to improve on an old law framed twenty years ago. Mr. SUMNER, Mr. MORRILL and Mr. PATTERSON fought hard to save the measure; to obtain the addition of some slight amendment which would send the bill back to the House and to a conference committee; but it was no use. The Senate had determined to close its eyes to fact and its ears to reason, and the bill was laid on the table by a vote of 46 to 9, thus going back to the old law of 1850. Not much less than $20,000 have been expended in the effort to revise the Census law, and make it equal to present emergencies. Under the circumstances, it is fortunate that so competent a man as General WALKER has been selected for Superintendent, as the law will be made the most of, be it ever so inadequate to the changed condition of the country. But to have had the old law and the old Superintendent combined, would have been a double misfortune.

GEORGIA.

The Georgia malcontents, BRYANT, CALDWELL & Co., appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee to-day, for the purpose of presenting reasons why Georgia should not be admitted, and urging that the recent action of the Legislature be overruled. Mr. CALDWELL presented a written statement to the effect that the organization of the Legislature was not justified by the act of Congress of December last. The responsibility of the alleged illegal action was sought to be thrown upon Governor BULLOCK instead of General TERRY, though the former did nothing that was not approved by the latter. Mr. BRYANT made a violent and denunciatory speech, which did not help his case before the Committee. The feeling that Georgia must come in at an early day on the same terms as Mississippi and Virginia is hourly growing stronger. The Legislature will elect new Senators next week, and if the men are such as can inspire respect and confidence here, as well as at home, the result will not be doubtful.

THE COVODE-FOSTER CASE.

The House, after spending the better part of two days in the discussion of the Covode-Foster case, finally awarded the seat this afternoon to Mr. COVODE, by a strict party vote. Nothing was heard of the resolution recently adopted to the effect that the proceedings in election cases should be without partisan influences.

MR. MORTON ON NEUTRALITY.

Mr. MORTON called up to-day the bill of Senator HOWE, proposing a sort of reconstruction of our Neutrality laws, more particularly of the original measure of 1818. The argument of the Indiana Senator to-day is regarded as the most ingenious that has yet been made on the subject. He maintained that we have virtually abandoned the Monroe doctrine by allowing Spain to make the United States a basis of operations against Cuba, holding that so far as that consolation of our policy is concerned, Cuba is to all intents and purposes part of the continent of America. He held that it was not either sound law or good common sense to act towards an American colony of Spain, or the American colony of any European Power, in the same way as we should act towards an integral represented portion of a country. He supposed a case—that an insurrection in Catalonia, a part of the Crown of Spain, would be altogether a different thing from a rebellion in a colony of Spain, a mere possession not represented in the Cortes or Council, and should consequently to met on very different grounds by an American Administration. Mr. MORTON was listened to with very close attention. Men like CARPENTER and SUMNER congratulated him when he finished, and throughout he kept the uninterrupted ear of the body. It is difficult to tell just now what impression he made or to foretell the effect of his argument.

MISSISSIPPI.

The Senate Judiciary Committee at their meeting to-day agreed to report the House bill for the admission of Mississippi with the conditions stricken out. This brings up the old fight in the Senate, but it is probable that the House bill will be moved as a substitute and carried, notwithstanding the fact that the anti-restrictives have received an accession of two to their number in the persons of the Virginia Senators.

SALE OF CADETSHIPS.

The House Military Committee began the investigation into the sale of cadetships this morning, by the appointment of a sub-Committee consisting of General LOGAN, General SLOCUM and General FOUCHTON, to examine witnesses. Two parties were called and some testimony taken; but nothing reliable as to the character of the evidence to be taken by this Committee can be given, as its members have taken an obligation of strict secrecy, while witnesses who are examined and inculpate either themselves or others, are not very likely to state the truth.

THE NEW-YORK POST OFFICE.

The New-York Post Office building, and its kindred topics and subjects, was considered for two hours in the Post Office Committee of the House this morning, which resulted in asking leave of the House to print the testimony for the use of the Committee. As soon as this is done they will go to work on their report.

THE APPROPRIATIONS.

The House, to-day, got fairly at work in Committee of the Whole on the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill. The temper of members is to scrutinize every item very closely; and there is scarcely a man in the House who has the temerity to propose an increase of expenditure. The bill will probably squeeze through, with the amount proposed by the Committee somewhat reduced. One of the items reduced to-day was the contingent expenses of the Senate from $50,000 to $10,000.

THE GOLD PLOT INVESTIGATION.

The Banking Committee to-day examined General HORACE PORTER, Private Secretary to the President, and closed the investigation. The report will be made up during the ensuing week. Nearly two thousand pages of testimony have been taken, much of which is irrelevant; and, as the report will be very full, the Committee are averse to subjecting the public Treasury to the expense of printing such a mass of matter.

BANK OF NAVY OFFICERS.

The House Naval Committee have agreed in the matter of rank for the staff of the navy, to give them positive instead of assimilated rank. But they have not yet agreed as to the grades or the number of each grade.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

MELTING THE CURRENCY PLATES.

There are now in the vaults of the Treasury Department thirty-four boxes of canceled steel plates and other materials heretofore used by the American, National and Continental Bank Note Companies in the printing of Government stamps, moneys and bonds. The Secretary has requested Senator THAYER to act as Chairman of a Committee to examine the contents of the boxes, and compare them with the schedules of of those furnished by the bureaus of Engraving and Printing, and the Internal Revenue. They are to be taken to the Navy Yard, and there melted in a blast furnace. The Committee will be composed of the following gentlemen: United States Senator Thayer, Hon. G. A. Halsey, of New-Jersey; H. Hammond, of the Secretary's office; W. P. Shearman, of the Internal Revenue office; L. D. Moore, of the Register's office; Southwick Guthrie, of the Treasurer's office, and A. S. Pratt.

THE ROLL OF HONOR.

Quartermaster-General MEIGS has, under the authority of the Secretary of War, published three more volumes, the last being the twenty-fourth, of the Roll of Honor. These show that in the national cemeteries near Corinth, Miss., Pittsburg Landing, Tenn., and Jefferson Barracks, Mo., the remains of 10,489 Union soldiers are interred. In the Nashville Cemetery are 10,000 graves, and in the cemeteries at Vicksburg, Miss., and New Albany, Ind., 10,000. The names, as far as known, are given in these volumes, but many of them could not be ascertained.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

From an official statement it appears that during the year ending with December, the receipts from spirits were nearly $60,000,000; from tobacco upwards of $30,000,000; from stamps, $15,500,000; from passports, through the State Department, $27,000; from salaries, $701,000. The aggregate receipts of the Bureau were nearly $194,000,000.

ASSESSMENTS IN KANSAS.

Supervisor MARR reports to the Internal Revenue Department that the assessments for the District of Kansas during January, 1870, show an increase of 100 per cent over the same month in 1869.

ILLUMINATING OILS IN THE ARMY.

A general order, promulgated from the War Department, provides that hereafter no volatile oils will be issued or used for illuminating purposes at military posts, and all varieties of coal oil will be regarded as volatile. In general lard oil will be supplied for issues of oil authorized for the necessary illumination of military posts.

NOMINATIONS.

The President to-day sent in the following nominations: JESSE R. GRANT to be Postmaster at Covington, Ky.; JOHN H. CAMPBELL to be Postmaster at Lansingburg, N. Y.; JAMES M. CROSBY to be Postmaster at Columbus, Ohio.

NAVY.

Captain JOHN HARDY BROWN, United States Marine Corps, has been detached from the Philadelphia Navy Yard, and ordered to proceed to Mare Island, Cal., and report to Rear-Admiral TURNER for duty as Fleet Marine Officer Pacific Fleet.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE.—WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Feb. 9.

Resolutions were offered and agreed to as follows:

By Mr. POMEROY—Requesting the President to communicate information touching the action of any of the Departments relating to the claim of the Central Branch of the Union Pacific Railroad to receive lands and bonds of the United States in aid of the construction of their road. Also, any recommendation he may see fit to make in the premises.

By Mr. TRUMBULL—Requesting the Attorney-General to transmit information relative to the claim of the Postmaster in Augusta, Ga., for salary, and any opinion given by him on the subject; also, whether he had any authority to pardon the Postmaster was disqualified, by participating in the rebellion, from holding such office.

By Mr. PERRY—Directing the Judiciary Committee to inquire and report whether the Legislature of Georgia has taken steps in accordance with the provisions of the act passed at the present session to promote reconstruction in that State, and whether there have been any violations of said act.

BILLS REPORTED.

Mr. CONKLING, from the Committee on the Revision of the Laws, reported with amendments the House bill extending time for revising and consolidating the statutes of the United States.

It authorizes the President to appoint three Commissioners to finish within three years the work prescribed in the act of June 27, 1866.

Mr. CARPENTER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported with amendments the bill for the withholding of moneys from Indian tribes including hostile Sioux.

Mr. HOWARD, from the Committee on Territories, reported a bill to provide for the payment of the expenses incurred by the Territory of Montana.

Mr. TRUMBULL, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported back the House bill to admit Mississippi to representation. The substitute declares simply, without preamble or conditions, that the State of Mississippi is entitled to representation in Congress.

NEW JUDGESHIPS—JUDICIAL CIRCUITS.

Mr. WILSON introduced a bill to increase the number of the Judges of the Supreme Court and Circuit Court of the United States, and to establish boundaries of the Judicial Districts. Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary. It provides for eleven Circuit Judges.

Mr. TRUMBULL reported from the Judiciary Committee, with amendments, the bill to change the judicial circuits. As amended the bill constitutes the circuits as follows:

The first Circuit to consist of the Districts of Maine, New-Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut; the second to consist of the District of New-Jersey, and the District of the Districts of Pennsylvania, New-Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia; the fourth to consist of the Districts of Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas; the fifth to consist of the Districts of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee; the sixth to consist of the Districts of Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and West Virginia; the seventh to consist of the Districts of Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin; the eighth to consist of the Districts of Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri; the ninth to consist of the Districts of California, Oregon and the Territories of Nevada and Utah. The Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States shall be residents of their respective Circuits, and vacancies now or hereafter existing in said Court shall in every case be filled by a resident of the Circuit.

NEUTRALITY—THE SPANISH GUNBOATS.

Mr. MORTON proceeded to address the Senate on the bill making it a misdemeanor to fit out, equip or arm vessels, or to furnish arms or munitions of war, with intent that they shall be employed in the service of any foreign Prince or State to commit hostilities against the people of any province, district or colony who are in a state of armed insurrection against such foreign Prince or State, and providing for the forfeiture of such ship or vessel.

Mr. MORTON said Spain had lately fitted out in the harbor of New-York thirty gunboats, and publicly enlisted crews for them in the streets of that City for the avowed purpose of subjugating the people of Cuba to her rule—the most desperate and inhumane rule on this continent. We had knowingly furnished ships and sailors to put down the effort of a neighboring people, with whom we were on the most friendly terms and enjoyed the most intimate commercial relations, who were struggling to free themselves from a military despotism of a cruel and effete nation, which derived from them by a tribute. He proposed so to amend our statutes that these things should not be repeated by authority of law. If any principle of law of nations required that Spain should receive this substantial assistance at our hands, that principle was principle based upon brute force and was proper. He held that no nation should feel bound to administer any pretended rule of law of nations, when to do so would be to inflict great injustice, cruelty and destruction upon large masses of people. He cited from various authorities upon international law in support of his position. Mr. DAWES was detected, if there was a difference between an attempt at revolution of a colony forming an integral part of a kingdom and a like attempt on the part of a distant colony, and remarked that the time had arrived to proclaim this doctrine as one vindicated alike in reason and justice. The allegation that when a nation took possession of a distant territory and established a colony there, such territory became a part of the nation equally with its former possessions, was unsupported by reason and the facts. The American colonies of England, France and Spain had been treated practically or practically, as integral parts of those Empires. It was a horrid mockery when the Spanish Government affected to treat Cuba as a part of the Kingdom of Spain, when she denied her rights under the Spanish Constitution, and treated her as a mere possession governed by the will of a despot. Mr. WILSON said he was unwilling to assert that the United States should interfere by military force in behalf of Cuba, he said he would maintain that the United States should not contribute, directly or indirectly, to uphold the power of Spain over that island. Leaving out of view the question whether the present condition of Cuban affairs justified our concession of belligerent rights, it was sufficient that we knew that a considerable portion of the people of Cuba were in arms to throw off the Spanish yoke, and, therefore, if we could not aid one side we might not aid the other. He then referred to the magnitude of the contest in Cuba, and depicted the revolting incidents, asserting that war had been carried on with a murderous cruelty that emulated the horrors of the French Revolution and indicated the Spanish character had lost nothing of the atrocious and Satanic barbarism by which it was distinguished in the wars in the Netherlands. Our silence now was in marked contrast with our former professions of sympathy with people struggling for liberty and natural rights. Moreover, the Cuban insurgents were struggling to abolish slavery, while Spain would perpetuate that institution in the island. Viewing the Cuban question from an American standpoint, he said Cuba was as entirely included in what was called the Monroe Doctrine as though she formed a part of the mainland, and the possession of Cuba by Spain being hostile to our policy, its retention by that Power should depend upon Spanish power and Spanish power exclusively. Her continued possession was to be regarded by us in the light of a sufferance, or toleration, rather than because of the existence of a valid title.

The bill of Mr. MORTON, with that of Mr. HOWE, relative to the neutral relations of the United States, were then referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

THE PUBLIC PRINTING.

Mr. ANTHONY, on leave, made a statement in support of the bill previously introduced by him to reform the public printing, and abolish all gratuitous distribution of books by the Government. He demonstrated that the cost of the Congressional printing proper had been of late years gradually diminished, while the Departmental printing had been annually increased. The cost of the former last year amounted to $522,422, much of which was for work supplied to the Departments, while the Departmental printing cost $644,000. He said the Department officials paid little if any regard to the cost of

of the publication of documents, and the number to be printed.

The bill of Mr. ARNOLD was then referred to the Committee on Printing.

THE CENSUS BILL.

The Census bill was then taken up.

Mr. PATTERSON referred to the vast increase in the wealth and population of the country, and argued that the enumerators were not needed, if they were provided in the amendment of the Senate Committee as a means of showing this increase.

Mr. BAYARD said the law of 1850 had been framed by able minds as a permanent law. The costs of a census during its provisions could be ascertained with exactness. The House bill proposed a hasty and sudden change from a system whose efficiency had been proven. What was known as householder's schedule, which was used in Massachusetts, was a novelty in this country, and this, too, for a more experiment, the practicability of which was denied even if taken under the House bill. There was no assurance of correctness in details of census. He believed the internal revenue system furnished at once all the elements necessary for assessing the required information.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, modified his amendment so as to provide for an enlargement of the schedules in order to include the subjects of petroleum, sorghum, molasses, fruits, wines, gunpowder, silk, libraries, (public and private,) telegraphs, railroads, fisheries, sites of timber lands, and such other subjects as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, and which will not materially increase the cost of taking the census.

Mr. CONKLING criticised the position taken by Mr. SUMNER, that the schedules to be used under the act of 1850 would prove insufficient for the purposes of an efficient census. The various subjects of importance were overlooked and others not fully classified. He proceeded to show that the general heads under which various articles were arranged in the schedules heretofore used in taking the census, were so comprehensive as to cover all subjects of which the census should properly take cognizance, and that none had been omitted. The volume of inquiries proposed to be made by the Senator from Massachusetts would involve an analysis of investigation incompatible with the process and real purposes of a census. He said the law of 1850 was in full force, the simple proposition reported by the Senate Committee, with a direction to the Secretary of the Interior to add twenty-five per cent to the compensation of enumerators, would obviate the necessity for further legislation, and this a complete census would be taken as heretofore. At a late of the session of the Senate upon general questions he moved to lay the House bill upon the table, remarking that the proposition of the Senate Committee, containing certain directions to the Secretary of the Interior relative to the census, would be disposed of separately.

The motion of Mr. CONKLING was agreed to—yeas 46, nays 9, as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Abbott, Anthony, Bayard, Boreman, Brownlow, Cameron, Carpenter, Conness, Chandler, Cole, Conkling, Corbett, Davis, Drake, Edmunds, Ferry, Gilbert, Hamlin, Harris, Howe, Howell, Johnson, Kellogg, McCreery, McDonald, Osborn, Pomeroy, Pool, Ramsey, Ross, Robertson, Sawyer, Schurz, Spencer, Stewart, Stockton, Thayer, Tipton, Trumbull, Vickers, Willey, Williams—46.

NEW RAILROAD AND TELEGRAPH SCHEMES.

Mr. CHANDLER, on leave, introduced the bill of last session to promote commerce among the States and cheaper transportation of the mail, and military and naval stores.

The bill authorizes the construction of a first-class railway from Washington to New-York, the capital stock of the Company to be $10,000,000. It also provides for a railway and telegraph line from Washington to Pittsburg, to be called the Washington and Northwestern Railroad and Telegraph Company; and also for a railroad and telegraph line from Washington to Cincinnati, the provisions as to the former Company being applicable to all.

On motion of Mr. SHERMAN, the Funding bill was made the special order for Tuesday next.

The Senate at 5:15 o'clock adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. BUTTINTON presented resolutions of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for the abolition of the duties on foreign coal.

THE FOSTER-COVODE ELECTION CASE.

The House then resumed the consideration of the Foster-Covode contested election case from Pennsylvania. Mr. RANDALL continued his argument in support of the claim of Mr. FOSTER. And after a discussion of about three hours the House proceeded to vote on the resolutions. Those of the minority, declaring Mr. FOSTER elected, were rejected, yeas 80, nays 128, a strict party vote. And those of the majority, declaring Mr. COVODE duly elected, were adopted by a like vote.

The oath of office was then administered to Mr. COVODE, who was thereupon congratulated by many members.

BILLS REPORTED.

Mr. JULIAN, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported a bill for the relief of settlers on certain lands in Iowa, which was passed.

Mr. LAWRENCE, from the Reconstruction Committee, reported a bill to enforce the amendments to the Constitution, which was adopted.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. BANKS offered resolutions calling on the Secretaries of the Treasury and the Interior for reports on the fur seal fisheries in Alaska, which were adopted.

Mr. COX asked leave to offer a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Navy for information as to the unexpended balance, monthly, from March, 1869, to February, 1870, the aggregate of expenditures for the same period, and, if in excess of the appropriations, the amount of such excess; also the amount of proceeds of sales of property for the same period.

Mr. KELSEY, of New-York, objected, remarking that all that information was in possession of the House already.

THE LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS.

The House then, at 3:45 o'clock, went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. CESSNA in the Chair, and proceeded to the consideration of the Legislative Appropriation bill.

On motion of Mr. DAWES, the salary of the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate was fixed at $4,320 the same as the Secretary of the Senate, with a proviso that hereafter he shall not be allowed fees of any kind. He remarked that the last Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate was said to have boasted that he had made $25 a day on the item of horses alone. He would make a similar proposition as to the House Sergeant-at-Arms.

Mr. DAWES moved to strike out the item for the reporters of the Congressional Globe on the ground that the publication of the Globe would probably be abolished at the present session.

Mr. MINLACK opposed the motion and sustained the propriety of continuing the publication of the proceedings as being the only chance that many members, himself included, had of ever figuring in history.

After further discussion the motion of Mr. DAWES was defeated.

Mr. NUGLEN moved to amend the item for the Capital Police, by increasing the numbers and the pay to the same amount as in the last appropriation bill.

Mr. DAWES opposed the amendment, intimating that there was really no sufficient reason for the maintenance of the Police at all, and because the amount proposed would make their pay one-third greater than that of the Metropolitan Police.

Mr. BUTLER, of Massachusetts, advocated the amendment, and suggested as an additional amendment that no soldiers now on the force should be discharged.

On motion of Mr. DAWES, Mr. BUTLER'S motion was modified by making it read "No disabled soldier."

After much further discussion, the Committee rose without disposing of the question.

Mr. BINGHAM moved that when the House adjourn it be to meet on Monday next.

Mr. DAWES demanded the yeas and nays.

The vote was taken, and resulted yeas 81, nays 91.

So the House refused to adjourn over.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were presented as follows:

By Mr. KEICHAM—Of the cigar manufacturers and dealers in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to reduce the tariff on imported cigars to 50 per pound and 35 by per cent, ad valorem.

By Mr. BOLES—Of the Mayor of Fort Smith, Ark., for an extension of the time for building the Western branch of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad.

THE MURDER OF AMERICANS IN CUBA.

Mr. BANKS offered a resolution calling on the President for information which may have been received by the Government in reference to the recent assault upon and reported murder of one or more American citizens in Cuba. Adopted.

The House then, at 5:10, adjourned.

Our Relations With England.

General ADAM BADEAU, who rendered distinguished services on General GRANT'S staff during the war, was recently United States Secretary of Legation at the Court of St. James, and is now on duty at the White House, has written an article, which will appear in the March number of Harper's Magazine, entitled "Our Relations With England." It presents some new views of the topic treated, which are understood to have the sanction of the President himself, and makes public for the first time some interesting facts regarding the foreign complications arising out of the late war.

VIRGINIA.

Virginia is again heard in the national councils. May it be potent for evil? May it be heard in thunder tones demanding the application and enforcement of the great principles upon which our Sonators and Representatives, and you and I were elected? Equal rights to all? Let it not come to enforce it, but demand until every hated test oath shall be erased from the national statute books, not until "political disabilities" shall be known no more among men.

Never before in the history of this Commonwealth has a Legislature assembled upon which devolved graver responsibilities than upon ours. The new Constitution is startling in the more it is considered and understood. Its votes will its chief provisions commend themselves to our approval. True, it contains provisions which, in my judgment, might be improved; but what I might consider a defect you might consider a virtue. What Constitution ever was with a unanimous approval? Are not all Constitutions compromises? I doubt if there is in the history of popular government, since there was a Constitution adopted with the unanimity of one. And while the unanimity may not be the correct measure of popularity, while other and extraneous matters have contributed to that result, nevertheless the adoption of the Constitution must and will be accepted as the sovereign commands of the people. Who desires or will presume to disobey them? We are sworn to obey it, the Constitution also? I shall be faithfully and honestly conscientious. Its provisions shall have a fair and impartial trial; and when, if ever, experience shall demonstrate the inutility or impracticability of any of them, we will proceed to make such modifications as our necessities may demand. The manifestation of Punic faith by others or their inability to justification for a departure from the paths of rigid honesty by us. The inalienable right and reputation of the people of this Commonwealth for honor and integrity will be maintained, regardless of the selfish and fanatical subversion of our enemies of home or abroad. We have but to do our duty faithfully, honestly and manfully; and we shall inaugurate a system with civil government as one of prosperity, of internal development and individual and private enterprise which in brilliancy will outshine the best glories of the Commonwealth.

Located as our State is, midway of the temperate zone, between the rigorous climate of the North and the torrid heat of the South, with every variety of fruitful soil from the rich alluvial bottoms along our rivers and sea coast to the higher table and timber lands in the west, our hills and mountains filled with exhaustless deposits of iron and other ores, with the finest harbor on the Atlantic coast affording ample and safe anchorage for the combined navies of the world, with an [illegible] climate, [illegible] and [illegible] Virginia is destined to take her proper position in the front rank of States in wealth and enterprise and material development. With a soil as fertile, and a climate more salubrious; with greater native wealth in her minerals, her water power, and her commercial advantages, than any of her sister States, why should not Virginia at once set out upon a career of prosperity and greatness unequaled and unsurpassed? Nothing but blind stupidity and criminal neglect of opportunities can prevent it. Our people expect it, the country anticipates it, and you and I will be held largely responsible if such an era fails of prompt inauguration. We have a canal, which, when completed, will prove as valuable an adjunct to commerce as the far-famed Suez canal. It can and ought, and I am confident will be completed, if you and the people will but heartily cooperate with me in it. The whole [illegible] shall hereafter take occasion to submit for your consideration. A South Pacific Railroad has been projected with its eastern terminus at Norfolk. I doubt not it will be built. When these two great works shall have been completed, together with the other railroads and lines of internal communication contemplated and in process of construction, and a direct steamship line between Norfolk and Europe shall have been established, every portion of our State will be in direct and easy communication with all the great commercial marts of the country and the world. All this is not only possible but altogether probable, and that, too, within the first half of the present decade. Rest assured all the influence which I can exert, personal and official, shall be wielded in furtherance of any and every plan which has for its object the development, advancement, growth and improvement of our State or any portion of it. But railroads and canals and other commercial facilities are not the only requisites to the successful inauguration of the career of Government which we all so ardently desire. We need also capital and population. These lie at the foundation of all improvement and prosperity. Without the introduction of these agencies it is idle to hope for the accomplishment of the grand results we have in view. A one-sense population is wealth. This will prove a blessing hand with us. Every able-bodied immigrant adds to the wealth of a State, it is estimated, from $1,000 to $2,500. With judicious, united and harmonious effort, our population, now numbering say one and a quarter millions, can be annually increased by immigration from forty to fifty thousand. How many years would elapse with such an annual accession to our population and wealth, before we should witness the full realization of our fondest anticipations?

In my opinion, immigration should be fostered and encouraged by all the influences we can properly exert. We all need it, and our country, Nature, with a lavish hand, has bestowed upon us all the advantages of climate, soil and mineral wealth which could be desired. But these alone will not suffice. There must be other inducements, which our people themselves can bring into operation. Thousands of vigorous, intelligent young and middle-aged men, without a loss of capital, are annually migrating from the Eastern and Central States of the Union to the West. They are honest, industrious, energetic citizens—the bone and sinew of the land, the very class of people we need in Virginia to purchase our surplus lands, build up our waste places, and to unite with us in developing our vast agricultural and mineral resources. Englishmen are already looking for homes in our State for the surplus population of the Empire. Much interest also in our behalf has of late been manifested among the other populations of Northern Europe. We turn the tide of immigration from all these sources to our State only requires the proper, combined and harmonious action of our people and their chosen representatives. Now is the opportune moment for such action,—once lost it may never return in your day or mine. The time for us to act is now; in our midst with the honest intention of becoming a good citizen, we must extend a cordial and hearty welcome, regardless of what State or nation may happen to have been his birthplace. He must be made to feel at home and the equal sharer of all that we have to offer, extended to him those social amenities of life which constitute its chief enjoyment, such as his station entitle him to receive and enjoy, and thrown around him and his, must be the protecting aegis of the law, securing and guaranteeing him in his life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Let it be known to all, then and now, that such are our purposes and intentions; that such reception and such protection will be accorded to every such immigrant; that law and order everywhere prevail, and will be maintained at all times and under all circumstances with the full power of the State; that every railroad train that arrives within your borders, every steamboat that anchors in your harbors, will be laden with people seeking homes and fortunes among you.

With all due respect to the opinions of others, it appears to me that any attempt at this time to divide, discract and vex our people with questions of mere party politics, any effort to galvanize into life a defunct political organization, with their attendant ills of sectional hate and animosity; any attempt for partisan purposes to reopen the terrible wounds inflicted by the late war, now healed or healing, deserve to be frowned down with indignation. Have we not enough to do to remediate and reinvigorate our own crippled and desolated Commonwealth? Have we more than enough to do to heal the wounds of our mighty task? Are we not admonished by all the love we bear her, by our veneration of her past and our hopes for her future, to stand as one man, to act as one united, unanimous, and, above all, united in a common effort and a common purpose to reorganize and rehabilitate the State, and to start her out once more "upon the high road to glory, glittering like the morning star, full of life and joy?" What we seek in Virginia is what the patriot seeks to-day, in the inauguration and colonization of a new and valuable member of spirit, unsullied by local prejudice or selfish and sectional interest. We must not forget that we are to-day a part and parcel of the American nation. Our destinies are inseparably linked with its destinies. Its growth will be our growth, its advancement our advancement, its glory our glory. I confess to a strong and conscientious belief in what is popularly styled "manifest destiny." It is manifest to me that the future destiny of the nation points unerringly to the gradual extension of its flag until the entire hemisphere shall have been embraced within its boundaries. And I believe that upon this mainland continent there is to be formed and moulded a new, distinctive, well defined and grand American nationality.

Balls Last Evening.

A private social organization called the New-York Masquerade Club, had its third annual ball at Apollo Hall last evening. There was a good attendance, and a large number of fine costumes were worn on the occasion. The festivities were somewhat marred, however, by extremely execrable arrangements. General E. FERRERO acted as floor manager. The following were the officers of the Club: Benjamin S. Eyre, President; General E. FERRERO, Treasurer; W. J. HOWELL, Secretary; E. H. SPRINGSTEIN, Sergeant-at-Arms.

HOME LIFE IN THE EAST: I. (Illustrated.) THE CONQUERING CARISES. By ANNIE THOMAS. ASSASSINATION OF SP

EVADING JURY DUTY.

Recommendations from Mayor HALL to the Legislature in Relation to Jurors.

Mayor HALL has prepared, and forwarded to the Legislature, the following copy of a proposed act in relation to jurors:

AN ACT in relation to Jurors in the Criminal Law Courts of the City and County of New-York.

The People of the State of New-York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. No officer or person in the City of New-York shall excuse a juror from service in either the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, or of the Oyer and Terminer, unless the officer of the Court, or each one of such jurors, being in good faith, either shall be in their personally absent from the City, or is confined to his house through illness, or is not unwell to serve. And no other excuse than these last mentioned shall exempt such juror from service in the criminal law Courts within the City and County of New-York, when such juror has been duly drawn and summoned. Provided that any attaché of Court may excuse a juror from service for one or two days only, at a time when exigencies of his private or regular business affairs may, in discretion of said Court, in justice require the temporary excuse of such juror.

SEC. 2. If any person serving as a juror in a criminal law Court for twenty days within any jury year, shall be exempt from any other kind of jury service within said City and county during said year, and shall receive a fee of actual mileage and one and two thirds the sum of — dollars, to be paid to him by the County Treasurer, upon production of the proper order thereon, and due certificate from the Clerk of the proper Court.

SEC. 3. If any person serving as a juror in any of aforesaid criminal law Courts, whenever any juror therein, who has been duly drawn and duly summoned according to law, shall neglect to appear and serve, or be remiss in attendance upon the duties of his office, or in respect of contempt of Court, and disregard and evading of the law, or attempt to bribe any juror, or force the Court, and, in the discretion of the Court, forfeiture of his service.

In connecting with the above the Mayor says:

"In this City the criminal neglect on the part of respectable and intelligent men to obey statutes to jury duty has been many times referred to by Press and Bench. It is no exaggeration to say that three-fifths of those whose names are upon the jury lists of the county habitually refuse to serve, and either pay their fine, or by different ingenuities, or influence, obtain exemption. In consequence, many persons serve the greater of a year are wasted in obtaining full panels. And when attendances are obtained, the jurors are not always such as the law should expect, and the administration of public justice requires. There is a remedy for this mischief; and with great respect I submit the enactment that the annexed bill will meet the difficulty herein especially referred to. In fine, the Mayor believes that the best measure toward promoting the "security of the City" will be found in forcing upon juries the men whose social and mental characters will benefit the service. With which, he adds, all writers and many citizens blame public officials for inaptness, when the very faultfinders appear upon the official books as habitually neglecting the appropriate duty in administration of law which it has contributed to them."

The Case of James K. Place.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer yesterday, after the case of Warden BEACON had been disposed of, JAMES K. PLACE, under indictment for obtaining goods under false pretences was called, and not responding, his recognizance was declared forfeited. The Court then adjourned to Friday morning next.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

The thirty-first annual reunion of the Eighth Ward Pioneer Clay Club will take place on Thursday evening, the 17th inst., at Apollo Hall, corner of Broadway and Twenty-eighth-street. The present officers of this time-honored organization are LUTHER MOREY, President; WM. C. HANNA and JOHN J. SHAW, Vice-Presidents; CHARLES E. GILDERSLEEVE, Secretary, and DAVID WALKER, Treasurer. The balls of the Club have always been remarkable for elegance and propriety, and the one of the present season bids fair to equal, in all respects, the most successful of its predecessors.

There will be a general meeting of the American Branch of the Evangelical Alliance in the Hall of the Young Men's Christian Association to-day, at 3 P. M. The exercises will consist of addresses, the election of officers, the reading of the annual report and the consideration of such measures as may be deemed necessary with reference to the General Conference of the Alliance in New-York in September.

A soldier's widow named MARGARET MONAGHAN complained before one of the United States Commissioners yesterday against a bounty agent named PATRICK R. SWIFT, charging the latter with unduly retaining a portion of the pension money awarded to her daughter Theresa. The accused was held in his own recognizance.

It is understood that a number of prominent gentlemen of this City organized into a society, a day or two ago, for the purpose of producing a stronger feeling among Americans in behalf of Cuba. General MCMAHON is said to be among the members.

A meeting of the New-York Marine Temperance Society was held in the Water-street Mission last evening. The venerable President, Captain EDWARD RICHARDSON, of the Seaman's Bank, occupied the chair. The meeting was thoroughly interesting, and addresses were made by many who had tasted of the ill effects of rum-drinking, but who now enjoy all the benefits of total abstinence. The room was well filled by an audience, the greater part of whom were the hardy sons of the ocean.

Professor J. W. DRAPER lectures on "The Operations of the War" at Irving Hall next Saturday evening. It is one of a series of lectures arranged under the auspices of Post "Fort Kearney," No. 8, Grand Army of the Republic, given for the benefit of the fund for the relief of disabled soldiers and sailors.

Mr. DE CORDOVA repeated his lecture "Twelingdale Village," before a large audience, last evening, at Steinway Hall. The proceeds were devoted to a charitable purpose.

The sixth season complimentary ball of the Sparkling Coterie was held at Lyric Hall, Forty-second-street and Sixth-avenue, last evening. Mr. ROBERT E. DANVERS acted as floor manager, and under his efficient superintendence the arrangements were conducted in a manner perfectly satisfactory to all.

The Union Literary and Debating Society held their regular weekly meeting last night at No. 312 Chrystie-street, the President, I. M. PATTERSON, presiding. The subject of a protective tariff was eloquently and ably discussed. The subject of their next debate will be, "Should the Social Evil be Regulated by Law."

For several weeks past negotiations have been pending between the Bankers' and Brokers' Telegraph Company and their employes, with a view to transferring the line to the latter. The negotiations are almost completed, and the contract is ready for signature. The delay is caused by the men themselves, who are awaiting the issue of a new press contract, shortly expected to be made. Possibly, however, this work will go to the National line, which is being rapidly constructed.

WENDELL PHILLIPS will deliver his lecture on "Daniel O'Connell," (postponed from December because of illness,) at Tremor's Lyric Hall, this evening. Mr. PHILLIPS, always eloquent and entertaining, finds in the life and character of the "Great Agitator," a theme that calls forth his best powers.

The fund for a Peabody monument in Central Park languishes sadly. JOHN BLOODGOOD & CO. have at first about $200 collected, and there are small sums at other offices. For some unaccountable reason, there is no interest taken in the matter, and no effort is made to push the project among bankers and merchants.

At the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday, before Judge SCOTT, JAMES WALSH was charged with a felonious assault upon ELLEN SHIELDS, a resident in a house of ill fame, No. 35 Mercer-street. From the statement of the prosecutor, it appeared that about 12:30 o'clock yesterday, she had an altercation with the prisoner, when the latter drew a pocket knife and stabbed her twice in the head. The injuries were not of a serious nature. The prisoner was committed for trial at the Court of General Sessions.

JOHN MOORE entered the plumber's shop of HARRY CHATTERTON, at No. 155 West Broadway, at an early hour yesterday morning. He was arrested while leaving the premises with a pair of pincers in his possession. When arraigned before Justice QUINN at the Tombs, the prisoner was held for trial.

BROOKLYN.

A post-mortem examination, held by Dr. SHEPARD yesterday, upon the body of MARTIN KENNEY, who died suddenly on Sunday last, revealed the fact that death was the result of strangulation, produced by vomiting, and by the lodging thereby of a piece of undigested meat in the windpipe.

At the Bethel of Plymouth Church last night, a very large audience assembled to witness the exhibition of the stereopaniteroscope by Professor R. P. WONDERLY. The selection of views of Great Britain and Switzerland was fine, explanations pointed, and both frequently applauded, the little folks especially being intensely interested.

All the trains on the South Side and Flushing Railroads were on time Tuesday, excepting a slight detention in starting east the express on the South Side and the 6:30 train on the Flushing Road, caused by the delay of the ferry boats. The storm was very severe on the east end of the island.

NEW-JERSEY.

A crazy German woman, residing at No. 108 Meadow-street, Hoboken, was found wandering in the streets of that city at an early hour yesterday morning. She had but a few days previously made a fire on the floor of her apartments. She had been an inmate of the Asylum at one time, and escaped a while ago.

The ferry boat New-Brunswick, of the Jersey City line, was damaged to a small extent while crossing the river yesterday morning by a collision with some logs.

The trial of CHARLES PHILLIPS, for atrocious assault and battery upon ELIZABETH WILSON, came up in the Hudson County Court of Sessions yesterday. It will be remembered that these parties figured rather conspicuously in a horsewhipping case a short time since, in which the fair defendant was the assailant. This action, however, is brought against PHILLIPS, who, it is alleged, assaulted Miss WILSON last month. A considerable amount of testimony was taken, impeaching the veracity of the plaintiff. The trial will not be concluded before this afternoon.

A young clerk named FISCHER, recently in the employ of CHARLES W. OSBORN, furniture dealer, Newark, has been missing since Saturday last. On that evening Mr. OSBORN left him in the store counting some pennies. Yesterday a note was found in FISCHER's handwriting, stating that he had left for parts unknown, and might probably turn up in a few weeks. No money is missed by Osborn.

Coroner CRAVEN, of Hoboken, was notified last evening of the death at St. Mary's Hospital of ABRAM HEERMAN in consequence of injuries sustained upon the Morris and Essex Railroad on Friday last. In endeavoring to board a moving train he fell. A car passed over one of his arms and injured it so badly that amputation became necessary. Mortification subsequently set in and death followed on Tuesday night. An inquest will be held this morning.

Late on Tuesday night a quarrel occurred in the house of THOMAS FRIDERGAST, between him, DAVID HERON and WILLIAM RYAN. The quarrel originated between the two latter, in the course of which, as alleged, RYAN drew a razor and inflicted a severe gash on FRIDERGAST's hand, in an endeavor to sever the disputants. HERON also received a dangerous cut on the chin. RYAN lapped off a portion of one of his fingers while trying to close the razor. The latter was committed to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Two men, named JAMES MCCORMACK and JAMES THOMPSON, have been sentenced in the United States District Court at Trenton to two years and a half each in the State Prison, for breaking into the Post Office in Morris County and stealing a letter therefrom. THE LIBERAL CLUB.

The "Science of Human Well-Being"—The Board of Education Requested to Have it Taught in the Schools.

The New-York Liberal Club held its seventeenth regular meeting at its rooms, No. 20 Third-avenue, last evening.

Professor PORT read a very interesting paper on the number of books published on the positive philosophy of AUGUST COMTE—236 in all.

Mr. D. T. GARDNER presented a memorial, which was adopted by the Club, requesting that instruction in the science of human well-being be given, for three or four hours per week at least, to the children in the public schools; and that no certificate or appointment be given to any teacher in a public school unless such teacher shall have acquired a competent knowledge of the science of human well-being, and of their capacity to impart such knowledge to young children.

When the memorial was submitted for acceptance, and on motion that it be presented to the Board of Education, Mr. DANIEL LEDDY said he had hoped they would point out more definitely the books to be studied, with a view to more effectually acquire the knowledge of human well-being.

Mr. DRURY explained that the Committee had endeavored to avoid having completed their duty by submitting favorably the memorial, not deeming the resolution for their appointment as covering the duty of making a selection of works for that purpose.

Mr. DRURY further moved that a Committee, consisting of seven members, sign the memorial and present it.

This motion was carried, and in accordance therewith the memorial will be duly presented in the following terms:

To the President and Commissioners of Education, New-York:

The memorial of the Liberal Club of the City of New-York showeth: That your memorialists are an association of citizens of New-York, holding stated meetings for the investigation and advancement of [illegible] the interests of the young [illegible] specially attended the attention of your memorialists, and in particular a paper on the "Government and Education of Children" was lately read by W. L. CONNOR, Esq., and discussed and commented by your memorialists; that the discussion of such important questions and debates in the plan of instruction, parental aims in public as in private schools, were pointed out and considered. Of these there appeared to your memorialists to be two by which their prudence must be [illegible] that your memorialists resolved to memorialize your Honorable Board to cause such omission to be supplied in all schools under your control. The omission is, in the opinion of that studying apprenticing parental teaching in schools of all kinds, secular and denominational or religious, as well as that of failing to supply to those who are to live by labor any knowledge of the true laws of nature, of which their prudence must be guided, in order that they may earn high wages and avoid low, yet the priniplesmwhich govern the rates of wages, the true relations of capital and labor; or those who are destined to administer capital, may be ignorant of the laws regulating the increase and preservation of capital. SALE OF PAINTINGS.

The Thompson Collection—Pictures Disposed of Yesterday.

The attendance at the Leeds Art Gallery yesterday morning was full as large as it had been for the two days previous, but the price realized for most of the pictures sold was far below their value. The morning sale comprised 135 pictures, catalogued from 449 to 600 inclusive, and the amount realized was $7,260 50, making the sum total received up to last evening $31,069 50. The highest-priced painting disposed of was the magnificent work, "The Sleeping Beauty," by WEBSTER, of Boston. The auctioneer stated that it had been painted for the late Mr. THOMPSON to order, and since his death the artist had been paid for the work $6,000. Upon the sale of the picture quite a lively contest took place for the possession, between Mr. H. C. LEWIS, of Gold-Water-street, and JAMES FISK, JR., of this City. The latter was, however, outbid, and it was knocked down to Mr. LEWIS for $800. The following pictures were also bid in by him for the prices annexed: No. 393, "A Landscape," by G. L. BROWN, $125; No. 395, a copy by T. S. CUMMINGS of Ingres's celebrated picture of HERRIEO, the original of which sold for $600.; No. 406, "Portrait of Martha Washington," by REMBRANDT PEALE, $260, and six portraits of ex-Presidents, Nos. 402-407, which were sold at prices ranging from $22 to $62, besides a number of lower priced works. WM. FISK, JR., purchased No. 524, "Wood Scene, with Gipsy Tent," by CORBETT, R. J., (London,) $65; No. 546, "Early Spring, with Sheep and Figures," by WAINEWRIGHT, J. T., (London,) $105; and No. 575, "Boston Harbor, with Fort Independence," by BRADFORD, $95 [illegible]

The following are the pictures purchased yesterday morning, in addition to those already noticed, which, from the price paid or from other causes, attracted attention, together with the names of the buyers, &c.: No. 538, "Cupid Asleep," by BETTOLLE, $50; Mr. HOGGE; No. 539, "Cupid Disarmed," by BETTOLLE, $50; Mr. HOGGE; No. 542, "Vase of Fruit," by SAWYER, J. H., $60; Mr. D. N. MEADE, of Dayton, Ohio. No. 553, "Lady at Balcony," by COYPEL, A., $76; Mr. BARLOW, dealer of Washington, D. C. No. 556, "Bacchus and Ariadne," by NATOIRE, CHAS., $60; Mr. BARLOW.
